Resuscitator Needed at Harmon Swim Pool; Underwater Lights Urged As Safety Factor

By JOHN BROSNAN

Throughout the state and nation, Twin Falls county and city are known for their progressive spirit, rich agricultural resources and economic strength, as indicated by their excellent credit ratings.

But sometimes there are signs of penny-pinching that don't fit into the picture.

Construction of a new Twin Falls county general hospital has been stalemated so long that it's now a question whether even the findings that it is a fire hazard will jar loose the machinery to remedy the condition.

On a much smaller scale, yet just as vital, is the fact that the Twin Falls city fire department is placed in a position that could become very uncomfortable. At present, the only two resuscitators owned by the city are located at the fire department. You cannot read this without hoping that, should the day ever come that someone close to you should need resuscitation, there will not be a situation in which these are being used at a fire or some other catastrophe miles away from where needed.

* * * *

In time of emergency, minutes assume the stature of hours, and a delay of even five minutes can sever the slender thread of life. Even under ordinary conditions, it would take several minutes to rush the resuscitator from the fire station to the point where needed.

With most of the summer season's hot weather still ahead, one of the most obvious places at which an inhalator could well save a life is at Harmon park municipal swimming pool. The pool is approximately ½ of a block from the fire station—a long 10 blocks when human life is in the balance.

Last Sunday night, events transpired to cheat 16-year-old Fred Parrott out of the life that should have been his.

Approximately half an hour elapsed from the time his companion last saw him until his friend became sufficiently alarmed to notify life guards. Within 10 minutes after the guards had learned he was missing, he was located at the bottom of the pool, apparently lifeless.

Firemen, police and a physician were called immediately, but it took the fire department about 15 minutes to arrive.

Not long thereafter, the oxygen supply was exhausted and a man was sent to the fire station (10 blocks) to obtain more oxygen which he brought back to the park (10 blocks) in the city police car. Prior to that upon arrival they had gotten the wrong type of oxygen tank.

As the physician in attendance had only a stethoscope with him, and also as it was deemed inadvisable to travel the 20 blocks involved to and from the fire station to get more oxygen, the boy was taken to the Twin Falls county general hospital.

At the pool, Guards Marshall Pettygrove and Lloyd Spellmann administered artificial respiration, and Pettygrove continued this in the ambulance en route to the hospital.

Then at the hospital the youth was given more oxygen and received adrenalin, while Pettygrove continued his respiration efforts.

Five minutes before the boy was pronounced dead at 10:30 p. m., a male attendant offered to relieve the guard in administering artificial respiration.

Because of the length of time Fred Parrott was under water, he probably never had a chance, yet the immediate accessibility of an inhalator at the pool would have removed all doubt.

The cost of an automatic inhalator, the more modern of the two types, is about $600.

Another safety precaution at the municipal pool would be installation of additional lights to enable guards to see the bottom of the pool after dark.

This project would entail a considerably larger expenditure than would the resuscitator purchase, but a Times-News checkup Wednesday showed it would not be prohibitive. Installation of auxiliary floodlights would probably not exceed $1,500; while apothlights could be placed to penetrate the deeper portion of the pool for substantially less than that amount.

Board at Stalemate On Resignation Date

A deadlock developed Tuesday at a special meeting of the Twin Falls county commissioners on the issue of whether Aug. 15, 1946, shall be the deadline for the resignation of H. C. Jeppesen, superintendent of the Twin Falls county general hospital.

Ernest V. Molander, chairman of the commissioners, failed to get affirmative response from Commissioner Kenyon Green when Molander offered a resolution Tuesday afternoon proposing that no action be taken "until after Aug. 1," on the Aug. 15 deadline requested by Green. Similarly, at Monday's meeting, Molander declined to vote for Green's motion which had called for the resignation of Jeppesen "at a definite date not later than Aug. 15."

Thus, county commissioners entered a theoretical 1-1 deadlock on the issue, as the third member of the board of commissioners, Ben E. Potter, Kimberly, is unable to transact official business due to illness.

Molander's resolution offered Tuesday stated that Jeppesen has advised the commissioners he intends to resign "on or about" Aug. 1, "and set a date on which said resignation will become effective."

The Molander resolution added that Jeppesen is a long-time employe of the county and "he is entitled to due consideration in this connection."

Sees No "Necessity"

Regarding Green's motion for Jeppesen's resignation by Aug. 15, the Molander resolution stated that it appears that there is no immediate necessity of passing on the motion hereinafter presented by Commissioner Green."

Molander's resolution continued, "by unanimous approval, the members of the county hospital board have deemed it advisable that no action should be taken on said motion of Commissioner Green until after Aug. 1," and concluded with the request that "said motion of Commissioner Green be, and the same is hereby, continued over until after Aug. 1."

At the meeting, Green signified to Molander that the chairman's resolution would not get his approval.

Following the meeting, Molander pointed out that members of the county hospital board favored no action on Green's resolution "until after Aug 1."

Molander also indicated he was not in favor of seeing Jeppesen "rushed" out of the hospital, and pointed out that the veteran hospital superintendent is "entitled to due consideration."

To State Date

"Jeppesen has told the commissioners he will submit his resignation by Aug. 1," explained Molander, adding that the formal resignation will state the date it becomes effective.

Molander said that among other things, Jeppesen would have to find housing for his family and that takes time. He should be given consideration in these matters."

Green had no statement to make following Tuesday's meeting. His comment Monday on the demand for a resignation by Aug. 15, was that "the effective operation of the hospital we do have is so important that I feel the situation calls for immediate and clearcut action."

Prosecutor Asks Murder Charges Against Suspect

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP)—State's Attorney William J. Tuohy said today he would seek murder indictments before the Cook county grand jury tomorrow against William Heirens in the slaying-slayings of Suzanne Degnan and the "lipstick" slaying of Frances Brown.

The prosecutor said evidence against the 17-year-old University of Chicago student would be presented by his assistants, Wilbert Crowley and Richard B. Austin.

Tuohy said James Degnan, father of the six-year-old kidnap victim, might be summoned to substantiate identification of the girl's dismembered body. He added eight other witnesses would appear, including police officers involved in the case.

Tuohy said a fingerprint and two palm prints on the Degnan ransom note and a fingerprint found in Miss Brown's apartment were identical to Heirens'.

Wakem Given Support for Hospital Job

The Twin Falls post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Tuesday night endorsed Dale Wakem, former Twin Falls high school teacher, for the post of superintendent of the Twin Falls county general hospital, which H. C. Jeppesen has announced he will vacate soon.

When interrogated last night, Wakem, VFW chaplain, declared that he had been asked to be a candidate for the job "about a month ago," by a party he declined to name.

He said that the VFW motion will be submitted to County Commissioners Ernest V. Molander and Kenyon Green "as soon as Ben Peters, VFW adjutant, can write it up."

Last week the Military Order of the Cootie, a branch of VFW, passed a resolution calling for Jeppesen's resignation.

Wakem sketched his qualifications for the job as follows:

He holds a master of science degree in education from the University of Idaho, taught mathematics and American history in Twin Falls high school for 11 years up to 1940, then headed the local branch of the FHA until 1943.

As executive director in charge of actual construction, Wakem raised homes in this area, acquired some financial, legal and home-management know-how, he said. Subsequently, he became manager of the real estate division of the

Chiang's Men Rout Reds in Chinese Fight

NANKING, July 24 (UP)—Nationalist assault troops were reported advancing in force on Communist Nanking today after smashing the communist "Nanking-Shanghai" line in north Kiangsu and ending any immediate threat to the capital.

Government troops were described as "counter-attacking fiercely" along a 150-mile line directly across the Yangtze river from the Nanking-Shanghai area. Communist bases at Jukao, Tienchang and Tungtai were threatened by the nationalist offensive.

Only at Chiaking, 38 miles northwest of Nanking on the Nanking-Hankow line, was the situation considered critical from the government viewpoint. Communists there reportedly were delivering nationalist defenses in a diversionary attack to protect Tungtai.

Communists were reported also to have renewed their attack on Taingtao, where the U. S. seventh fleet is anchored. Two thousand communists who landed more than the Yellow sea base in 100 junks, reportedly captured one village in their first successful amphibious attack.

Tuber Moth Kept From Spud Fields

BOISE, July 24 (AP)—Wilson Kellogg, acting director of the state bureau of plant industry, said today after a survey that there has been "no known spread of tuber moth" to Idaho potato fields.

Insecticide spraying against the infestation attributed to potatoes shipped from California has been completed at Idaho Falls, Burley and Caldwell, Kellogg reported. Spraying will soon be finished at St. Anthony, the only other place reporting the moths.

"To the best of our knowledge," Kellogg said, "the infestation has been confined to the California potatoes shipped to processing plants and to the buildings holding those shipments."

'Baker Day' at Bikini

A "pastel white" debris-filled waterspout capped by a steam cloud 20,000 feet high, accompanied by chemically created fireworks and a "muffled boom or roar" like an earthquake—these are some of the phenomena expected to result from the first underwater explosion of an atomic bomb today. Experts predict that initial waves 75 to 100 feet high will originate at the target, but will spend themselves within a short distance. The atomic "fireball" is expected to develop underwater and be visible to flyers, but surface observers will see only a reddish glare.

A-Bomb Test Observers Watch For Battleships in Water Spout

By The Associated Press

The earth's first submarine atomic bomb was detonated Thursday (Wednesday U. S. time) with a giant roar precisely on schedule.

The time was 8:35 a. m. Bikini time (2:35 p. m. MST.)

The roar could be heard plainly by radio listeners in San Francisco.

A water spout immediately shot up 2,000 feet.

The mist and spray completely obliterated from view the 75 target vessels.

An official broadcast said the water spout took an entirely different shape from the aerial burst and rocketed on upward to 8,000 feet.

The cloud hung lazily in the blue sky over Bikini.

The outer row of target ships were the first to appear out of the awesome haze, showing that at least some had survived the blast.

ABOARD B-29 "THE VOICE" OVER BIKINI, Thursday, July 25 (AP)—We headed for Bikini lagoon just after dawn today to see the first underwater explosion of an atomic bomb.

No one knew just what to expect. It's impossible for the mind to conceive of the fabulous power to be released beneath the waters of the lagoon by atomic fission.

Most everyone aboard has seen a waterspout created by the explosion of a 500-pound depth charge. But the atomic bomb is 5,000 depth charges all rolled into one.

Capt. Louis W. Whittaker, Oklahoma City, commander of "The Voice," said his crew had been briefed on what to expect—to look for a tremendous water column shot into the heavens.

He grinned "this guy said maybe we'd see the Saratoga going right on up with the water."

That is one thing we were told to watch for—the possibility of the explosion lifting battleships out of the water.

"The Voice" took off from Kwajalein at 6:17 a. m. (12:17 p. m. mountain standard time) and roared into the sky to join the air armada taking part in the historic event which will make navy history.

Twins Alternate With Same Wife

RENO, Nev., July 24 (AP)—The Smith twin who stayed home has always won Mrs. Ethel Greer Smith for a wife.

Her attorney, John Robb Clarke, today said Mrs. Smith's marital adventures with the Smith's identical twins, began when she and Elmer J., 32, were wed in her home town of Hollywood in 1944.

Ben Elmer joined the army and went to the south Pacific, and Mrs. Smith divorced him in Reno.

A year later she married his twin brother, Henry V.

Later Henry was sent to Bahrein island on the Persian gulf as an oil company representative.

Then Elmer came home.

Yesterday Mrs. Smith divorced Henry and remarried Elmer.

Senator Says Profit Probe Only Starting

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Senator Brewster, R., Me. today termed the senate war investigating committee's study of a midwest munitions combine "only the under the tent" in its plans to scrutinize "the whole wartime show of corruption and influence."

His statement to newsmen came as the committee: (1) called upon the White House for income tax records of undisclosed figures in the combine, (2) asked the war department for help in its investigation of defective shells from an unidentified source which killed American soldiers and (3) drafted a budget of $65,000 in new funds to widen the exposure of wartime frauds.

Scratched Surface

"We've only scratched the surface" said Brewster, a member of the committee which has been examining the wartime activities of the combine in which the Garsson brothers, Henry and Murray, were active.

"We saw seven $1,000 bills in this case," he said. "And there were two million of them floating around during the war. They weren't used for playing pinochle."

Brewster's comment on the $1,000 bills was a reference to testimony that Joseph Freeman, Washington sales agent for the combine, carried his pay around in his pocket in that size currency.

Corruption Prevented

Brewster said that he had believed that the committee prevented considerable corruption during the war.

"It seems," he said, "that a great deal of criticisms [illegible] were submerged in deference to the need for quick production. That is evident from the flood of tips now pouring into the committee."

He said that one of the first jobs now facing the committee is a determination of specific cases on the cases called to its attention.

Taylor Offers Campaign Aid To Candidates

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Senator Taylor, D., Ida., said today he may take part in the political campaigns in several states this fall.

"I shall, of course, make my services available to the party leadership in my own state," he told a reporter, "and I may get into Montana, Utah and California.

"I do not like to campaign where I am not known, but the Democratic company played in many Montana towns and I have a good many friends in that state, and should like to help Judge (Leif) Erickson, who defeated Senator Wheeler, D. Mont., for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

"I also should like to help Senator Murdock, D., in Utah. I delivered the keynote address at the recent Democratic convention there and I expect I have played every LDS hall in the state.

"Will Rogers, Democratic nominee for senator in California that suggested that I speak for him. I worked in California shipyards during the war, and I think I might be justified in speaking to labor in that state."

Taylor said he thought the Idaho Democrats wisdom to be officially agreeing on a party chairman at their convention next Monday.

He said he would prefer that a northern Idaho man be named "as a matter of balance" but had no candidate of his own for the post.

Mention has been made of L. Korter of Moscow and Dan Cavanaugh of Falls have been mentioned for the post.

He said he expected the Idaho campaign will be lively.

Service Removal Sought on Planes

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—The civil aeronautics board today called upon the Lockheed Aircraft company and four other firms to show why Lockheed Constellation airliners, now temporarily grounded, should not be removed from service permanently.

The action was taken, CAB said, after the civil aeronautics administration filed complaints against the five companies seeking to revoke permanently the operating certificates for the planes. They are engaged primarily in trans-oceanic flying.

Severe Headaches On OPA Expected As Passage Nears

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Conceding that some "severe headaches" may be ahead in getting OPA back into business again, Majority Leader Barkley, Ky., today urged the senate to give speedy approval to the compromise legislation for reviving price controls.

He told his colleagues that the measure worked out by the senate-house conferees and approved by the house yesterday is "with two or three exceptions, in substance the same bill that congress passed previously and the President vetoed."

But he asserted that disagreements between house and senate had made it necessary to "make some concessions if we got any bill at all."

In reply to a question, Barkley said that he had received "positive assurance" from the OPA administrator that some program would be worked out to alleviate the situation of elevator owners and other grain purchasers who had bought at current, above-ceiling prices but who faced the possibility of a roll-back of prices on Aug. 20.

Barkley said the OPA administrator would "go as far as possible toward batting out these people caught in this situation."

The majority leader replied in the affirmative when asked by Senator Tobey, R., N. H., if he did not agree that when, as and if they start to roll back these various prices there will be a considerable number of severe headaches."

Signature Promised

Quick presidential action was promised as soon as congress sends the revival bill to the White House.

Charles G. Ross, press secretary, told reporters President Truman will act "very promptly" and send congress a message or memorandum—whether his action be veto or approval.

Ross would not forecast Mr. Truman's action which he timed as likely to come tomorrow. However, House Democratic Leader McCormack, Mass., has said the President will approve the newest version of a trimmed-down OPA.

The house passed the measure on a 210 to 142 vote yesterday after defeating 220 to 135 a vote to strike out all but rent controls.

Idaho's two congressmen split in voting on the bill, Representative White, D., voting against and Representative Dworshak, R., for it.

As it went before the senate, the bill would provide for modified price control authority and unchanged rent controls until June 30, 1947.

It would set up a three-member decontrol board which would determine whether ceilings should be reestablished on meat, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans after Aug. 20.

The board, with the secretary of agriculture, also would be empowered to restore controls on poultry, eggs, food and feed products made from them and tobacco, which otherwise would have no ceilings.

Top OPA officials still are uncertain how some provisions of the bill would be applied.

Red Delegate Rejects U. S. Plan on Atom

NEW YORK, July 24 (AP) — Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet representative to the United Nations' atomic energy commission, today formally rejected the major United States proposals for control of atomic energy.

Gromyko, speaking at a session of committee No. 2, specifically turned down the U. S. proposals for setting up an atomic development authority and for ruling out the veto on atomic matters.

Whole Plan Spurned

In making his statement, the Soviet representative made it clear that his government was rejecting "as a whole or any part" of the third memorandum submitted by Bernard M. Baruch, U. S. delegate. This memorandum had summed up all principal points of the United States plan.

Meanwhile, the controversial Palestine question was slated for a place on the crowded agenda of the general assembly which meets in New York Sept. 23.

Action Asked

Arkady Sobolev, acting secretary-general, disclosed last night that Egypt and Iraq, acting in concert with five other Arab states, had asked assembly action to help bring the strife-torn British mandate under U. N. trusteeship.

The Palestine disclosure came in the midst of these developments:

Soviet circles said the Palestine question might be raised by Russia during discussion of Transjordan's application for membership in the United Nations, scheduled to be held within the next few days before a committee of the security council.

The security council was scheduled to meet for what was expected to be a brief session on routine matters.

Arabian Note Adds Tension In Palestine

JERUSALEM, July 24 (AP)—Tension in Palestine, scene of a vast manhunt for extremists who bombed the King David hotel Monday, was heightened today by an Arab warning that if the British failed to halt terrorism the Arabs would be forced to take a hand.

While searchers continued to dig through the debris of the hotel here in hopes of finding additional persons still alive, British troops and Palestine police combed Jerusalem for leaders of the Jewish underground organization Irgun Zval Leumi.

Blame Fixed

An announcement purportedly from the organization, received by the Associated Press last night, said that Irgun Zval Leumi "soldiers" staged the bombing, which resulted in at least 40 persons killed, 55 injured and 65 missing.

Six persons have been taken from the debris alive.

A military engineer in charge of the working parties said delicate sifting of the rubble would go on "until red media scans us there is no chance anybody else is alive; then we'll bring up Sherman tanks and tear it to pieces."

Many documents marked "top secret" from the files of the wrecked British military and administrative headquarters were found scattered about.

Warning Phoned

An anonymous telephone caller last night said Arabs threatened at police headquarters. In response, police and army men manned roadblocks with fingers on triggers. The area bristled with guns, but the 11 p.m. passed without incident.

The question most frequently asked in the holy land was what effect the explosion, which destroyed a wing of the hotel containing British military headquarters, would have on the admission of additional Jews to Palestine.

Flier Convicted

BOSTON, July 24 (AP) — Lieut. Thomas Farrell was convicted by a Suffolk superior court jury today on three counts of assault with cigarettes and a razor blade on Miss Helen Starrou, 18-year-old typist.

FLASHES of LIFE

By Associated Press

NEEDED

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., July 24—Congressman F. Reuben Lynch asked that something be done for his third ward constituents, upset by the "annoying and excessive whistling" of a switch engine.

Roger T. Sermon, Democratic mayor of President Truman's hometown, suggested it would be unwise to stop the whistling since dangerous intersections were involved.

"But mayor," protested Lynch, "you should hear these people (the constituents) two weeks from Tuesday." (That's the date of Missouri primary election).

"If the train doesn't whistle at those intersections," retorted Sermon, "they may not be here two weeks from Thursday."

DANGEROUS

SPOKANE, Wash., July 24 — J. W. Gurney showed more than passing concern over reports that some boys were shooting through his building's windows.

Stored in the building are gasoline and dynamite.

INGENIOUS

GRAND FORKS, N. Dak., July 24 —The high cost of fishing rods isn't stopping some fishermen from going to their favorite lake with proper equipment.

They're buying auto radio aerials, welding three loops on one end, and the frame on the other. It adds up to a perfectly working rod—and the cost is about one-fifth the price of the real rod.

Amber Role Given To Linda Darnell

HOLLYWOOD, July 24 (AP)—Linda Darnell, dark-eyed young actress, today was awarded the prized role of Amber in the controversial "Forever Amber," the best-seller which has been in and out of production since spring at 20th Century-Fox.

The studio also announced Otto Preminger as director, replacing John Stahl.

Stahl quit several weeks ago, and production was suspended.

Subsequently the studio announced that Peggy Cummins, the British importation, had been relieved of the lead. Miss Darnell now replaces her. Cornel Wilde remains in the male lead.

OPA Rushing Price Control Renewal Plan

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—Obviously banking on imminent new legal life, OPA rushed plans today to slap a big segment of the American economy back under June 30 price ceilings, at least temporarily.

On rents, the agency has ready an order re-establishing the same controls which were in effect in each of 520 areas when the federal law lapsed at the end of last month.

Control Delayed

Except on major food items and certain other products which in no event can be placed under ceilings again before Aug. 20, OPA's plans to restore June 30 maximum prices apply pretty much across the board.

Officials emphasized that many of these ceilings would be temporary. Under the pending revival bill OPA is required to apply new standards which, according to the agency, will require higher ceilings in many cases.

Time Granted

But the bill gives OPA 30 days after enactment to make most of the stipulated changes. In the case of the Barkley amendment, which sets up a new base period for fixing ceilings of manufacturers, producers and processors, OPA need not act for 60 days after an industry committee petitions for a price adjustment.

In some cases, June 30 ceilings probably will be replaced quickly with temporary higher prices calculated under provisions of OPA standards.

U.S., Russia Facing Clash On Payments

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—A two-continent diplomatic clash between Russia and the United States appears to be shaping up today over German and Japanese war booty.

At the root of the impending trouble are these factors:

1. Reparations Commissioner Edwin W. Pauley's announcement that this country is considering a permanent halt to German reparations deliveries to Russia in offset "more than $2,000,000,000" worth of Manchurian industry "incapacitated" by Soviet removals from that country.

2. Disclosure by state officials that the United States will oppose an expected Russian demand for a share in reparations from the Japanese mainland.

Reporting to a news conference late yesterday on his findings during a 16-country survey, Pauley charged that the Soviet action in Manchuria has upset the "lives and welfare of 900,000,000" people throughout the far east for at least a generation.

In the light of this, he said it is his "personal opinion" that the United States could extend its current ban on deliveries of German industrial equipment to Russia without violating the four-power Potsdam agreement on reparations.

But for the last two months, Pauley said, the shipments from the American zone have been held up until the Russians come across with their share.

Spud Planting 3.4 Per Cent Above 1945's

By FITZSIMMONDS SERVICE

Plantings for the 1946 potato crop reported as 2,784,000 acres, are two per cent above the March 1 intention but 3.4 per cent below last year's plantings. With probable abandonment deducted, the acreage for harvest becomes 2,725,000, which is 3.1 per cent under last year's harvested acreage, and 8.2 per cent under the 1935-44 average. Acreage in the 16 late surplus states is estimated at 7 per cent under last year, but 21 per cent under intentions, and 9.8 per cent under average. In the intermediate states, acreage is reported as almost the same as last year, but about 7 per cent above intentions and 8 per cent under average. Early acreage is put at 6 3 per cent over 1945, and 10.5 over the average.

A new high of 215,000 acres for the 1946 harvest is established for Maine, 8,000 acres above last year and 50,000 acres above average. A drop of 76,000 acres is noted in the midwest, while western states are down 41,000 acres. Of the latter, 26,000 of the decrease is in Idaho alone, the remainder being scattered with the next largest drop of 8,000 acres in California. The deficit late states changed little from last year, dropping a total of 6,000 acres.

Yield

Yield is the big factor in the crop prospect, as it sets a new high record for the second straight year. The figure of 138.4 bushels per acre, is 7.8 bushels over last year's yield and 32.6 bushels, or 25 per cent, over average. This is a staggering yield, and represents a combination of favorable weather, improved cultural practices, and acreage shifts to high yielding areas. Increases in the late and intermediate states amount to only 8.5 bushels, but the average is raised by the 24.1 bushel jump in the early states. California leads with 390 (early crop) and 325 (late crop). Maine is second with 290, followed by Arizona, 240; Idaho, 235; Long Island, 230; Washington, 225; and Oregon, 220. The only other state breaking 200 bushels are Colorado and Nevada with 200 each.

Production

U. S. production is now set at 431.7 million bushels, only up to the 465 million bushel crop in 1943. The early portion of the crop is an all-time record of 70 million. Total last year was 425.1 million, of which earlies accounted for 64.1. The 15 million bushel increase in the early crop accounts for the fact that the 18 late surplus states are 11.4 million bushels below last year, while the 37 late and intermediate states together are 8.4 million below 1945. In other words, taken at its face value, the crop estimate is much less disturbing than it might be because 15 million bushels of the surplus over needs already is over the dam. An additional 2 million will be accounted for when the intermediate marketing season ends.

This means that we can enter the late season, 11.4 million bushels better off than in 1945.

Comments

We have disagreed with the official estimates all year, and disagree in some important respects now. That we are higher on the early crop means relatively little, but it may mean that DA has set out to minimize the crop too conservatively. Specifically, we suspect that acreage in North Dakota, Minnesota, and Idaho have held nearer to last year's level than the report indicates. Declines of 43,000, 18,000, and 24,000 acres, respectively, simply do not jibe with the very favorable price support program for with most of the trade gossip. If these declines are reduced by 75 per cent, which is not unreasonable, the late crop would be boosted by 10 million bushels. As to yields, we have little to go on as yet, but we do quarrel with the figure for Long Island. Instead of a 40-bushel drop, from 270 to 230, recent visitors to fields on the island report a tremendous set and excellent size, with a real possibility of breaking last year's record. We are less certain of New Jersey, where the yield is said to be down 7 bushels although we hear of fields of Chippewas with 8 to 9 good big tubers and a couple of B-size under each plant, and the vines as green as grass. Isolated cases, maybe, but we won't stick our neck out. But Long Island alone could add nearly 3 million more bushels to the crop.

Early Commercial Crop

In a separate report issued also on July 10, the early commercial crop was further revised. In thinking of it, remember that this portion of the total crop is not the same as the early state section of the general crop report summarized above. It includes only the really commercial portion of the crops in those twelve states, plus the commercial portion of the crops in Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Delaware, and New Jersey. The apparently identical production figures of the June 1 report on early commercial and the July report on 12 early states are merely a coincidence.

The report puts total early commercial acreage at 382,100, which is up 3,100 acres from the June report, and 24,300 acres over last year, and up 63,000 acres from average. Compared with the June report, Oklahoma is up 700 acres, or 40 per cent; North Carolina now shows 1500 acres higher; and New Jersey is up 2,000 acres. Downward adjustments were made in Kansas and Nebraska amounting to 1,100 acres. We think acreage still is underestimated in North Carolina, New Jersey, and possibly in Virginia. Yield is a new high of 205 bushels, 24 bushels over the previous record made last year. And 16 good bushels over 30 per cent above average. We suspect some yields will be changed again later, especially in Kansas and Nebraska. Reported 10 bushels lighter now than in June. As for production, another all-time high record of 78.5 million bushels, 21 per cent over last year's record crop, and 60 per cent over average.

Shipments hopped up again last week to 6,280 cars, 911 cars over the preceding week, for a daily average of 1,046.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Doing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from heartache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when it gets blocked it fails to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is not soda or an alkalizer—but something to "unblock" your intestinal tract—something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits your food to move along normally. Nature's own digestive juices can then flow. Then question arises relief that makes you feel really good again.

Get Carter's Pills at any druggist one. "Unblock" your intestinal tract for real relief from indigestion.

Wakem Given Support for Hospital Job

U. S. army engineers, Boise, a job which entailed selling and leasing government land from civilians.

Wakem was discharged from the army last year, and taught the past term in the Filer high school here.

He indicated last night that he had been intending to leave teaching this fall, and has been making other plans.

Other business at the VFW meeting included the resignation of Leo Parkinson as commander. Effective immediately, this action moves two subaltern officers up a notch. Senior Vice-Commander M. J. Doyle will take over the leadership of Twin Falls VFW and Junior Vice-Commander Ray Puttier automatically takes the vacated position.

This leave the job as junior vice-commander open for election, to be held at the next meeting Aug. 13.

Lieut. George P. Clayton recounted his war experiences at the Tuesday night meeting.

100th Boy Scout Troop in Council

The 100th Boy Scout unit in the Snake river area council—a new Scout troop in Burley—has been organized, Herbert R. West, Scout executive, announced Wednesday.

Sponsored by the new fourth ward of the LDS church, the troop will be led by Scoutmaster Coleen Dunmer. No number has been assigned to the new unit, but it probably will be designated either troop 10 or 13, West said.

Harold Steel, bishop of the church, was elected the troop's representative on the Snake River area council and is one of the troop committeemen. Steel also is chairman of the organization committee for the Burley district. Other committeemen are J. Russell Call, Reginald Gardner and Gilbert Boren.

Eighteen Scouts have been registered with the troop.

Jensens Beat Heslet Team in Giant Loop

The Jensen All-Stars pounded out a 20 to 11 victory over the Heslet All-Stars Wednesday morning in a Little Giant league game. The game pushed the Heslets farther into the cellar and brought the third-place Jensens closer to striking distance of the loop leaders Kenneth Boyd, Heslet manager, a home run.

In a Junior American league game the Coca Cola team thumped the Wins-Grocery team, 21 to 6. Clemmons with 2 Don Patterson hit two home runs and round-trippers were hit by Richard Insley, Ronald Glantz, Bill Hitchcock, Donald Yeaman and Carl Boyd. Triples were hit by Patterson, Insley (2), Glantz, Hittenbach, Robert Melton, Chuck Williams and Boyd.

Civic Forces Plan Ways to Win Passage

A campaign to obtain passage of the three inititatory bills for gambling control and temperance, petitioned recently by the Allied Civic Forces for the November election, was mapped by members of the county committee Tuesday night at the home of the Rev. Hugh B. Garner, chairman.

The three petitions received more than enough signatures to insure their presence on the general election ballot and the principal objective of the county group now is to have the measures pass in Twin Falls county, according to the Rev. James W. Brown, Filer, committee member.

To further this campaign, rallies will be held in every community in the county. Later in the fall the ACF will publish a list of the candidates for county office whom it supports. These lists will be sent to the 55 participating groups — Granges, churches and WCTU chapters—in the county.

J. M. Pierce, Twin Falls, was elected to the committee membership. Also attending were Mrs. K. H. Blevins, Hansen, and Ed Dorrington, Filer.

Boys Will Judge With Expert Here

Twin Falls county 4-H club boys Saturday will get the chance to judge sheep, swine and beef under the guidance of an expert livestock judger, Wade Wells, extension animal husbandryman of the University of Idaho. Wells will conduct a tour of 4-H club boys to two farms in this area and give pointers on livestock judging.

The tour will start at 10 a.m. at the C. F. (Bud) McNealy farm northwest of Filer and will conclude at the Gould brothers farm, also northwest of Filer.

Individual and 4-H club team judging contests will be held.

No Arguments Facing Demos At Convention

By FRANK W. FITMAN

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Idaho Democrats have picked about the hottest time of the year for their biennial convention opening Monday in Boise but early speculation indicates that the weather will be the only hot issue.

Most observers say that Dan Cavanagh, Twin Falls sheepman and contractor, has practically been agreed upon by everybody concerned for the chairmanship to succeed D. L. (Dave) Bush, Boise insurancemen, who has announced he will not accept another term.

Executive Secretary J. (Al) Koffler is announcing detailed convention plans today said about 250 delegates were expected for the one-day meeting that opens at 10 a. m. Monday.

The first business will be the election of a convention chairman and appointment of committees.

The important platform committee will be composed of one delegate from each of the 44 counties. They will elect their own chairman.

Attorney Marshall Chapman, Twin Falls, will deliver the keynote address in the convention event on the morning session. His talk is expected to set the mood for the convention and outline the campaign issues his party will emphasize this fall.

The afternoon session will be devoted to the adoption of the platform and committee reports and the election of a new state chairman.

U. S. Sen. Glen Taylor is expected to make a flying trip to the convention even though congress may be in session. Sen. Charles C. Gossett has indicated he would not leave Washington, D. C., if congress has not adjourned by the convention date.

Holes Drilled As Prelude to Meters

That noise you heard in downtown Twin Falls Tuesday was one of the main preliminaries to installation of parking meters in Twin Falls.

Holes in the curbings are being bored by pneumatic drills preparatory to installation of posts under contract to Detwiler Bros., Inc. The meters have not yet arrived, but it is anticipated that most of the groundwork will be laid for their installation by the time they come, according to Streets Supt. Plez B. Wilson.

GI Prisoners Take It Easy, Writer Finds

(Editor's note: The following story is one of the first ever permitted on life inside the Ft. Missoula disciplinary barracks which broke into national prominence recently when several barracks were set afire by prisoners. The story was written by Ian Sanderson of the Missoula Weekly Times, former reporter for the Times-News.)

By IAN SANDERSON

FT. MISSOULA, Mont., July 2 (UP) — We're walking down "Easy street" flanked by triple rows of barbed wire and the 1,285 prisoners of the army prison give the appearance that someone barked "at ease" and never rescinded the order.

The men with the patriotic "P" on their clothes are well-fed, well-housed, ambitious for tomorrow, lazy today.

Place Shines

Comes inspection day and the barracks shine like a mackerel in the moonlight. They polish their mess kits with emery boards, ashes, sand and even jeweler's rouge. They scrub the floors until you can see your reflection. The latrines are moped, scrubbed and moped and scrubbed all over again. Then they scrub the mop handles.

But at the various vocational guidance courses, in the laundry or mess halls, at their barracks or at their probational duties the prisoners definitely take it easy.

Bull-necked, hearty Col. J. J. Prance, commanding officer and veteran of two wars, believes in the "pat on the back" system. He praises the prisoners, encourages them, talks to them man-to-man. He publishes a list of commendations for outstanding work.

Punishment Severe

Punishment is no severe as praise. The prisoners who step out of line are slipped in "the hole" for solitary confinement ranging from several days to the maximum of two weeks.

There the men sweat it out in dark, but clean cells, six by ten feet, with no light, no privileges, no bed—nothing but one loaf of bread a day and water to drink. Two special cells, no larger but with lighting and army cots housed two GI's awaiting the death penalty for rape.

When asked how many tunnels had been started from the compounds to the outside fence, several hundred yards away, France roared with laughter.

"They never stop. Must have been a thousand tunnels dug but this just isn't tunnel country. The soil's no good for digging—too rocky," he explained.

Hours of Rupert Swim School Set

RUPERT, July 24 — Hours for the Red Cross swim school have been announced by Dr. E. H. Elmore, local health and safety chairman. Dates for the swim school are July 22 to Aug. 3.

They are: 10 to 10:30 a. m., boys 8 to 10 years; 10:30 to 11 a. m., girls 8 to 10; 11 to 11:30 a. m., boys from 11 to 13; 1:30 to 2 p. m., girls 11 to 13; 2 to 2:30 p. m. boys over 14; 2:30 to 3 p. m. intermediate group; 3 to 3:30 p. m. swimmers; 3:30 to 5 p. m., junior lifesaving group.

Buses will leave the schoolhouse at 9:15 a. m. and 1 p. m.

28 Housing Units Arrive in Rupert

RUPERT, July 24 — Sections for 28 two-bedroom housing units have arrived in Rupert to be completed by Sept. 18. Plumbing installations have begun.

Furniture will also be transported here for the use of veterans who need it. Rental for the units will be $30 per month to servicemen. The project is under city management.

It is thought that committees from local veterans organizations will be asked to assist in passing upon and approving applications and allocating housing among applicants.

Townsendites in Roundtable Talks

Round table discussions were held at Townsend club No. 1 and 4 meetings Tuesday night, Albert Ezell, Townsend leader, said.

Club No. 4 met at the courthouse with Ezell in the chair. A council meeting could not be called since a quorum was not present. At the next meeting plans for a picnic will be made.

Club No. 1 met at the Baptist bungalow. B. F. Hays was chairman of the meeting. After the regular session a council meeting was held.

RIDING CLUB FORMED

SHOSHONE, July 24—A riding club was formed recently at a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Cole. Elected co-chairmen of the group were Lee Larron and Cole.

Workshop of a Lawbook Author

Surrounded by section files and page proofs, H. B. Clark is shown working on the last chapter of his latest book, "Michigan Evidence." Lining the walls of his Twin Falls office are more than 1,000 law books. His publisher furnishes him with complete sets of books covering the subjects he has contracted to write. (Photo by Bill Nelson-staff engraving)

Writing Law Books Dull and Dry? Not to Twin Falls Man

By BILL NELSON

Probably the most exclusive and least known group of writers in the world are the authors of the law-comes to which present day judges and lawyers turn for concise restatements of the existing laws. Restatements are necessary as laws are constantly being developed or modified by the countless thousands of judicial decisions which are made each year.

To the layman only one name stands out in connection with the writing of law. Blackstone, although there have been many others throughout the years who can be classed with the great. Men such as Cooley, Freeman, Pomeroy, Suthberland or Wharton. All of them did an incredible amount of work, for the writing of a law book is one of the most tedious, exacting jobs in the world.

At present there are only about 25 full-time law writers in the United States, which brings us up to H. B. Clark, one of the 25 who has made Twin Falls his home.

Clark or Hib as he is known, is a graduate of the National university law school, Washington, D. C., where he received his LL.B, LL.M. and M.P.L. degrees. Since leaving school, Clark has written, edited or indexed more than 39,150 printed pages of law totalling approximately 19,570,000 words.

Michigan Set Now

Nearing completion is a volume on Michigan Evidence. Part of a 10 volume set, Clark's contribution, a mere 1,500 page, has been almost a year in the preparation. He writes approximately 125 pages a month.

Research for this one volume necessitated the studying of more than 300 volumes of cases, covering the past 104 years, decided by the supreme court of Michigan on the basis of evidence.

Before writing the article on "Vendor and Purchaser" in Texas jurisprudence, Clark read some 4,-000 cases in which disputes had arisen between sellers and buyers of land, where the price had not been fully paid at the time of purchase.

"The cases are a revelation of the many ways in which people manage to get into trouble with each other," Clark said, "and the writing of a law book therefore becomes something of a study in human carelessness and perversity."

Keen Interest

Clark has a necessarily keen interest in his profession. "The writing of a law text article is a laborious and painstaking task, but not necessarily an unpleasant one," he said.

"I remember some years ago before writing the article on 'Homicide' in 'California Jurisprudence,' I read some 3,000 murder and manslaughter cases which had been appealed to the California supreme court.

"When I had finished that work, I was quite familiar with all the ways and means by which a human being could be killed as well as with the various devices by which the killers had escaped or had attempted to escape punishment.

Like News Story

Clark compares the writing of a section of a law book to the writing of a news story. It begins with a broad statement of a legal rule governing the particular factual situation, he says. Illustrations follow, showing situations to which the rule is applicable and those to which it is not.

"When a section has been properly written it constitutes an original work, a fresh statement summarizing the existing law as to a particular point," he said.

They Pick Subject

Whereas most authors have to decide the subject about which they are to write, Clark said that the publisher usually decided what it was to be, told him and then all he had to do was to write it.

"When the subject and the scope have been decided," he said, "the writer or his assistants begin a search of all existing authorities. Old books on the subject are read and all the available existing cases.

"As the research progresses, the writer gradually develops in his mind a plan for his own book. Chapter headings suggest themselves so that he can sort the material he collects into tentative chapters. Each chapter is broken down into tentative sections. When that is complete he is ready to begin writing, section by section."

Clark made this observation regarding his work: "It is interesting to observe how generally consistent and uniform the courts have been in their holdings throughout the years.

Some Twisted Law

"But every more noteworthy," he said, "are the infrequent occasions when the odd judges, not those of today, of course, twisted the law to suit their own private notions.

"For example one can see how some judges transgressed the ordinary rules in order to make it difficult for an injured employee to get a judgment against an employer or for a person injured at a railroad crossing to get a judgment against the railroad.

"There have been decisions that have made it impossible for a parent of a child killed by another's wrongful act to get judgment of any size for the wrongful killing," he said.

Six Children

As well as being a writer, Clark is a family man. His wife, Ruth, is the daughter of Lottie J. McFadden, the first woman legislator of Idaho. The Clarks have six children, half boys, one of whom is in the army air forces.

In addition to being an author, Clark has conducted radio programs, been editorial manager of a law-book publishing house and dabbled in politics, serving one term as a member of the house of representatives of the state of Washington.

Of the many books Clark has written, perhaps his best known is a volume entitled "Biblical Law." In this, which is now in its third printing, Clark has extracted the laws of the Bible and drawn a comparison between them and those in existence today. The book traces many of our modern laws to their inception and recording in Biblical days.

Church Youth School to Be Open Monday

The all-community vacation church school, sponsored by the Twin Falls Ministerial association, will open with a general assembly at 9 a. m. Monday, July 29, at the Methodist church.

After the opening service by Rev. H. C. Rice each morning at the general assembly with Mrs. Robert Miller accompanying, the primary group will go to Presbyterian church and the juniors will go to the Christian church. The beginners department will stay at the Methodist church.

Superintendent of the beginners, ages 4, 5 and 6, is Mrs. M. E. Shotwell. Mrs. Beatrice Kibbey will be in charge of the primary department, ages 7, 8 and 9. Mrs. Catherine Potter has the junior group from 10 to 12 years old.

Teachers in the beginning division are Mrs. George Champlin and Mrs. L. W. Routh. Helpers will be Sally Martyn, Betty Skinner, Anda Terry, Carolyn Clark and Diane Weaver. Janet Gillespie is story teller. Teachers and helpers in the other departments have not been announced.

The city is furnishing junior department recreation leadership. At a meeting Monday night Frank Slack, chairman of the vacation school, was appointed to represent the ministers. Mrs. H. H. Burkhart is general superintendent.

Motorist Appeals Verdict on Crash

A justice of the peace court judgment involving a Twin Falls traffic accident was appealed Tuesday to district court by the defendant, G. K. Hunt.

J. O. Pumphrey, justice of the peace, found for the plaintiff, Phil Cargill, operator of the Yellow cab taxi service, in a judgment July 8 which awarded Cargill damages of $122, plus $150 for loss of use of the cab, and costs.

Hunt, in a counter-claim, had asked for damages of $172, plus $20 for loss of the use of his coupe, and costs.

The accident occurred May 4, 1944, at Sixth avenue north and Third street. Ed Brennen was driver of the cab, and Hunt was operating the coupe.

Cargill's complaint was filed April 17, 1946. His attorney is J. H. Barnes. Hunt is represented by Marshall Chapman and Lawrence D. Quinn.

Recreation Plan For Whole Year Agreed on Here

Twin Falls needs an all-year-around youth recreation program, members of the community coordinating committee decided Tuesday night, as they investigated plans to supplement the city-sponsored recreation program which expires next month.

Charles (Chic) Crabtree was designated by Mayor Bert A. Sweet to contact participating organizations of the council so that a committee may be formed to prepare plans for winter recreation.

Additional long-range duties of the committee would be to raise money for the program, and to formulate plans for obtaining a youth center building.

Also discussed was the part the city schools would play in the winter program, and the possibility of women's organizations, churches and other groups backing the program.

Present at the meeting were Bill Folsom and Morrie Reid of the city recreation department; Commissioner O. H. Coleman, the Rev. Mark C. Cronenberger, First Christian church minister, and R. L. Summerfield.

Manager Retires

BUHL, July 24 — Ralph O. Morse will retire, effective Aug. 1, as manager of the Buhl Elevator, a position which he held since 1912 when he came here from Longmont, Colo., to serve in that capacity for the Colorado Milling and Elevator company.

Jack Kennedy, Jerome, will be transferred to replace Morse here.

Schools to Share $31,589 in County

Schools in Twin Falls county will share a $31,589.82 slice of county and state tax revenue for the final quarter of the 1945-46 school year, according to figures released Tuesday by Mrs. Doris Stradley, county superintendent of public instruction.

Apportionment for this quarter to Twin Falls county schools from the state amounted to $2,862.98, received July 15.

Heaviest allotments went to independent school districts as follows: Twin Falls, $13,548.19; Kimberly, $2,466.71; Buhl, $5,640.13; Filer, $1,-267.72; Castleford, $1,864.44; Murtaugh (joint independent), $1,121.-06; Hansen, $1,069.31.

Filer (rural high), $1,066.21; Hollister (rural high), $315.26; Hollister, $267.78, and Marcs, $288.54.

Rural schools heading the list were Berger, $296.82; Poplar Hill, $280.16, and Northview, $238.77.

Amphibious Landing Told to Rotarians

Amphibious landings in the southwest Pacific were outlined at the Tuesday noon Rotary club luncheon by Capt. A. A. Morrison, former Buhl resident who served as a navy physician during the war.

Captain Morrison explained how casualties were taken care of in the assault landings and illustrated his talk with chalk drawings of navy strategy used in the beachhead landings.

Leo Phillips, vice-president, presided in the absence of Edward W. Crane and Sid Smith, Shoshone, was a guest.

THE HOSPITAL REPORT

Now that Fisher and Fisher, Denver architectural firm, has made a final report to the county commissioners following its investigation of the Twin Falls county general hospital, the issue once more is brought directly up to the people.

In many respects the results of the investigation concur in the findings of Dr. Benjamin W. Black who made a similar investigation several years ago.

The present county hospital building—to say nothing about the administration of the institution and all the trouble that has surrounded its operation—is every bit as bad as the people have been led to believe, with the Denver investigators going even so far as to brand it as a "fire trap."

There is no point in evading any longer some of the issues that have made our hospital problem difficult of solution. One of the principal issues has been the erection of an auxiliary county hospital unit at Buhl instead of having all of the county's hospital facilities located at Twin Falls.

The Times-News is not interested in taking sides on this issue other than the recommendations that have been made by both Dr. Black and Fisher and Fisher. There seems to be general agreement among qualified investigators that the cost of erecting and operating an auxiliary hospital unit at Buhl would be out of all proportion to the purpose it would serve.

"A 20 or 25-mile ambulance run over highways of relatively low traffic condition is a matter of minor importance," the Fisher and Fisher report was careful to point out, in addition to other reasons it advanced for a satellite hospital not being necessary at Buhl.

It should now be apparent, following two exhaustive investigations, that the question of a county-operated hospital should be settled once and for all without further delay.

The move, it would seem, is for the county commissioners to procure estimates as to the cost of a hospital such as that recommended by Fisher and Fisher, and to submit a bond issue for that purpose to the voters of the county.

If the election carries, well and good. If not, well at least know where we stand and can dismiss all further thought of a county operated institution, and set out to solve our common problem by some other means.

With the hospital issue becoming especially strained during recent weeks, added responsibilities have been forced upon the county commissioners who find themselves stalemated now and then on important matters because one of the three members, Ben Potter, is physically unable to attend meetings and vote.

With all due regard for Mr. Potter, it would seem that under the circumstances it would be best for him to tender his resignation, so that an active third member could be appointed to the board in preparation for the important decisions the county must be making in the immediate future.

PINCH-HITTER

This being a government of and by the people, with free speech and free press, we are devoting the space below to the proposal of a visitor who dropped in yesterday with a few suggestions on how this country should conduct its foreign relations.

"What this country needs, said he, "is John L. Lewis to bat for Jimmy Byrnes at that foreign ministers' conference."

The visitor blinked solemnly through his glasses until the laughter had subsided, and added, "It isn't as silly as it sounds." He then went on to give his reasons, which were substantially as follows:

The administrative setup of our big labor unions resembles the Russian government more closely than does our government in Washington. Therefore, Mr. Lewis, labor leader, should understand the Russian viewpoint better than does Mr. Byrnes, who has only been a lawyer, senator, supreme court justice and secretary of state.

Mr. Molotov is a skillful bargainer. He comes to a conference demanding in the name of righteousness and justice far more than he ever expects to get. Then he makes a great show of magnanimity in granting concessions while he receives just what he wanted in the first place. That is precisely the technique that Mr. Lewis uses.

Mr. Molotov is one of the world's toughest men to face across a conference table, but so is Mr. Lewis. Mr. Molotov is backed by a tremendous country with tremendous resources, and by a government with a tremendous determination to get what it wants. Mr. Lewis has the same determination, though vastly less backing.

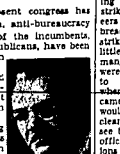

Thus did our visitor (though not a union man himself) enlarge upon Mr. Lewis' qualifications as the particular man for the particular job. What he had in mind for Mr. Lewis was just a pinch-hitting job. Let him negotiate for his country as well as he does for his miners and a lot of international problems might be solved.

After taking into consideration that we are dealing with Russia, that idea may not be as silly as it sounds.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

PROPHETIC—Although the present congress has set a modern record as anti-union, anti-bureaucracy and anti-Truman, less than ten of the incumbents, including both Democrats and republicans, have been defeated in primary contests which comprise most of the key states.

It is the most spectacular and possibly prophetic feature of present-day politics in so far as it reveals the people's attitude on world and domestic problems.

Ray Tucker

In general, the session now facing adjournment and reelection has been the most conservative body in a generation. Although overwhelmingly Democratic, it has repudiated a large portion of the Roosevelt-Truman program of the last 13 years.

Only on foreign affairs, and then only experimentally, has it agreed with the White House, and on these occasions there has been hardly any bipartisan division.

* * *

SUCCESS—It is not generally realized, but the dying congress has killed many surviving new deal projects and refused to extend controls wanted by the Truman administration.

In refusing to perpetuate Roosevelt reforms in the labor, agricultural, social and economic fields, the members knew that they were antagonizing great gobs of voters. They figured that they were taking their political lives in their hands.

But in the face of this political revolution, the MCs have won unexpected success in the preliminary tests at the polls. No recent congress has had such a small casualty list. Naturally, the legislators regard their survival as a demonstration of popular confidence in them.

* * *

CONCLUSIONS—Two commanding features of the primary battles have been the surprising weakness of the more radical groups, especially the CIO, and the pronounced hostile attitude toward aggressive American participation in such world organizations and operations as the United Nations, the Bretton Woods fund and program, the British loan and general policing of the world universe.

It is possible to draw numerous interpretations from the voters' behavior, but politicians on capitol hill, as the most interested parties, think they have a right to their conclusions. They believe:

1. That organized labor's tactics since V-J day have made a CIO endorsement as much of a liability as an asset. They think that a member sporting this organization's label will be assailed as "communistic," and liable to loose support among more conservative workers and the so-called white collar class. Save in some districts, the men who pursued a middle-of-the-road course have had the easiest time in the primaries.

* * *

OPERATION—2. The politicos are leery of interpretations that are based on isolated tests, such as the senatorial races in Nebraska, Minnesota, or Montana, reveal the nation to be isolationistic or internationally-minded. They discount both conclusions because of the importance of the many local issues, influences and personalities which figured in those fights.

What they do think is that the American people are willing to do their part in any program for world cooperation, but peace, but that they are slightly suspicious of the sincerity of other nations in this respect. And the numerous legislative threats at Moscow and at the Soviets exhibit friends in the U. S. leave no doubt as to the country which they suspect and fear.

The national political picture as of today appears to have a conservative trend as compared to 1944 and 1948. But, although hopeful, not even GOP leaders are willing to throw their hats in the air or make any serious bets—yet.

* * *

SALESMAN—Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo strutted the senate floor like a Roman conqueror upon returning to Washington after winning a primary in which he virtually urged defiance of the constitution and rolled in the political mud of Mississippi. But his welcome killed the growing belief that his colleagues might seek to expel him.

Like Rep. Andrew Jackson May, the "salesman of racial hatred" sought to cover his embarrassment, if any, by making himself conspicuous. Instead of slouching in his seat, as he usually does, he paraded around the chamber. "The man" almost pulled his associates out of their seats by the force of his handclasp. He bent over them and threw his arms around their shoulders. He acted like an amateur salesman—of Bilbo.

* * *

EFFUSIVENESS—He approached the most liberal and progressive members of the club—men who, he must know, despise his attitude toward racial problems. If they had any thought of avoiding him, they could not have escaped his effusiveness without insulting him deliberately. So, he was given the usual greeting, in appearance at least, that any victorious senator receives.

Cloakroom discussion of the "Mississippi affair," however, suggests that there will be no punitive action. The members of the exclusive club on capitol hill seem to feel that "If Mississippi want that kind of man, it is their business, not ours!"

VIEWS OF OTHERS

WHAT FOOLS MORTALS BE

The enormous profits in professionally-operated games of chance always sustain the Lincoln contention that all the people can be fooled some of the time. The oddity of the case is that the lure of returns disproportionate to investment attracts to gambling a world with fingers continually burnt at it.

The Lincoln admonition comes to mind in reading the estimate of Idaho Pioneer Statewide, Boise weekly newspaper, that Idaho has 3,000 slot machines which are reaping a gross profit of $9-million a year. Pioneer asserts that only half of these machines are licensed by the state, which means they must pay a state tax of $100 and must also contribute at least two and one-half times the license fee, or $250 a year, to state charity. These 1,500 machines, presumably, pay an annual total of $375,000 to charity, $300,000 in federal taxes, $150,000 in state taxes and an estimated $50,000 in city taxes. The Idaho newspaper calculates that each machine nets $3,000 a year "for just standing in a corner and having its arm yanked all day," this being the average earnings of machines in Washington, where the state takes 20 per cent of the profits and keeps a close check on the take of each machine.

The implication is that two suckers are involved in this transaction.

Sucker No. 1 is the state which, if Pioneer's calculations are accurate, is directly netting only $100 on each machine which produces $3,000 revenue a year, whereas the state in Washington takes a healthy cut of a flat 20 per cent, or $600 of the earnings.

Sucker No. 2 is the fool who so willingly and entirely unofficially demands the right to be shorn of his worldly wealth by playing the slot machine. He blithely closes his eyes to the fact that playing a slot machine is not gambling, in the accepted sense of the word, but merely submitting one's coin on the sacrificial altar. Slot machines pay nobody except their proprietors, because that is what they are built to do. The cogs, escapments and clever wheels within them, that twirl the pretty pictures of sudden wealth, are so arranged that they shame a cold deck in a poker game or a loaded dice in craps. In the rare event that one of these machines betrays its trust and becomes momentarily profitable to the player, it is perforce retired from play until a mechanic arrives to tinker it into a proper mechanical sense of its obligation. It simply is not intended to offer a square game of chance; it wouldn't be exposed to play if it did.

An argument for permitting the robbery of banks, if the proper licenses were first taken out and robber agreed to split a small share of his loot with charity, would be almost as tenable as the theory behind the Idaho "coin-operated amusement device control act." — Lewiston Tribune.

PEGLER

NEW YORK—During the shooting war when the vaunted "no strike" pledge of the bloated union-leaders was violated in the breach at the rate of about 75 strikes, big and little, each week, many Americans were naive enough to think that when the war came home they would, somehow, clean house and clean out the officials of unions which had been responsible for these strikes were discredited and eliminated.

Westbrook Pegler

If it was true, as Paul McNutt so often said in those days, that every man-hour of work lost from production for war meant a corresponding delay in the winning of the war and a corresponding loss of life at the front, then it must follow that the thousands of violations of the "pledge," which never was a pledge but only a political promise, actually cost many lives in battle.

Many a fighting man now dragging a thin and battered body through life or fumbling, sightless, to train his fingers to a pitifully restricted number of tasks must in his condition to the ruthlessness of men who called thousands of workers off their jobs, many of them against their will, for petty causes, or warned conscientious Americans to take it easy.

The most dramatic example of this sort of doing was revealed on Nov. 4, 1943, at a hearing before a sub-committee of the house committee on naval affairs investigating the failure of production in the plants of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation which was manufacturing planes for the navy. Brewster had failed horribly and the management apparently deserved some share of the blame.

* * *

The witness before the sub-committee on Nov. 4 called himself Thomas V. Lorenzo and volunteered that he had used "a half-dozen names" and that he was a liar and an imposter with a criminal record which, later, was enlarged by a conviction on a charge of assault. He said he had picked the name of Thomas Vincent De Lorenzo "out of a telephone book or a hat" because "it sounded nice." His original name had been Harry Ponner.

Congressman Edward Herbert of New Orleans, brought out the fact that under the "democracy" of the United Automobile Workers' union, as practiced in local 365, of which De Lorenzo was president, ten per cent of the membership constituted a quorum and that six per cent of the whole membership could call a strike at a meeting attended by a handful.

Mr. Herbert said: "You are engaged in war production and your local strikes destroyed 33 planes of ours. When Captain Westervelt (of the navy) was on the stand, I tried to paint the picture to him to show what strikes on production centers of Germany are for the purpose of curbing production and that those 33 planes which were not produced would have been the same as if the fuitwaffe had come over Philadelphia with you in the lead plane. He agreed with me that that was substantially correct. Not a German soldier's life was lost destroying those 33 planes which you and your organization did. Did you ever make a statement like this: 'Our policy is not to win the war at any cost. The policy of our union is to win the war without sacrificing too much of the rights for which we have at the present time?'"

"Did you ever make this statement: 'If I had brothers at the front who landed the ten or 12 planes that were sacrificed I would let them die?' Mr. Herbert continued.

* * *

"I made that statement," said De Lorenzo who said this was his way of fighting fascism in the United States.

Illustrating the fallacy of the idea that the boys would take revenge on the unions or even oppose them in any effective organization, Walter P. Reuther, who was elected president of the United Auto Workers last March, was invited to address the recent convention of the American Veterans Committee, meeting in Des Moines. Mr. Ruether's remarks, as quoted in the official bulletin of the AVC, made no reference to any part of the record of his union in violation of the "no strike" pledge, the loss of production, the consequent deferment of VE and VJ days, the additional battle casualties and other sufferings inflicted on the men whom he now had the composure to address as though he had been their friend, or to the career and statements of De Lorenzo. Instead, as the bulletin said, he "joined a chorus of attacks by convention speakers on congressional actions and commissions in national legislation.

Mr. Reuther was cordially received and a group photograph was published in the bulletin. Henry Wallace, other honored speaker, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., a member of the national planning committee of the AVC.

Mr. Reuther's union adopted a "policy statement" last April which repudiated his insistence, during the long and highly detrimental General Motors strike last winter, that rates of pay for workers should be in proportion to the employer's ability to pay. That invited small operators and less efficient operators to reduce wages, which, of course, the union would not consider.

The alternative was the obliteration of the small and less efficient plants and the creation of monopoly in the hands of the big companies. Confronted with this argument during the strike, Mr. Reuther resorted to nimble footwork and later dismissed it all in the manner of Wendell Willkie's mention of "campaign oratory."

The "policy statement" contained a further proposal, however, which illustrates the method of the wartime unionmen in their post-war courting of the veterans without reference to the restrictions and pesecutions inherent in union government and discipline or the disgraceful wartime record of which sugar, which is naturally sweet all on its own.

WHO'S THIS GENT?

Rummaging around through our files, we found an engraving of a certain well known south Idaho gent, as he looked about 30 (our estimate) years ago.

We present same herewith as a memory jogging test for old timers.

Anybody recognizing him from this picture may mail the answer, plus the top (also bottom, sides and contents) of a butter carton.

FAMOUS LAST LINE

". . . Not enough paint left to polish the ol' car any more! . . ."
THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

BOB HOPE

After reading the front page of my newspaper, I began worrying about the uncertainty of the future. So, just to be on the safe side, I rushed out and bought myself a lifetime pen. After writing to my congressman, I decided to invite a fortune teller and try to find out what the future held in store for me. A fortune teller. . . that's a gypsy with the accent on the first syllable.

Bob Hope

It was an interesting experience, though. I sat down in front of a crystal ball and she told me to cross her palm with a coin. I crossed her. . . it was a slug. This fortune teller really knew her stuff. She told me that when I was young, I had all the measles, then it must have met a tall dark man who took one look and whispered, "It's in the chandelier!"

She didn't miss a trick. After reading the bumps on my head, she predicted I would meet a beautiful blonde. But I'd already met her. . . that's how I got the bumps on my head.

I still don't know much about the future, but I haven't given up. This week I tune in on Drew Pearson.

* * *

De Lorenzo's testimony is only a page in a black book of enormous bulk and the most cynical tone. This is the demand for bonuses of not less than $100 nor more than $3,500 for home service veterans and from $500 to $4,500 for overseas veterans.

The AVC pretended to renounce the bonus but the description in that resolution was hailed in a minority report which said that "the impossible conditions attached to this resolution were included in the full knowledge that they were impossible to fulfil. We are opposed to using a club over veterans for a grabbag purpose such as this."

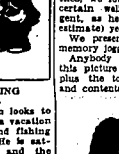

* * *

The significant point is that the union movement, which betrayed all service men, raising the death and injury of many, and profiteered and racketeered throughout the war, has met them at the separation centers with open arms and cries of "brother" and now has moved into the political position of defender of their rights during their absence.

And Mr. Reuther, who started the drive for the explosive wage set back reconversion so far that new automobiles are still a rarity and set in motion the inflation which has made so many veterans and others homeless, is invited to address a group of veterans under left-wing leadership omitting largely of professional propagandists and to abuse congress for conditions directly traceable to his own strike.

He did this without the slightest challenge as to his union's conduct in the war or its responsibility for shortage and distress among discharged veterans today.

POT SHOTS

ENIGMA OF FISHING

Pot Shots:

The third business man looks to the north and longs for a vacation letting his hair down and fishing on a pine-scented lake. He is saturated with civilization and the thin veneer of propriety that encases his soul is wearing thin over his Cro-Magnon impulses. He gives in and hunts down the habitat of the wary trout.

The tired fisherman returns to civilization with a sigh of relief to his good bed and clean board. His eyes are red from wood smoke, he is sunburned and his hips ache from trying to sleep on the ground. He has spent hours with a variety of tempting bait to snag one fish. Greasy food and too many canned beans have alienated his stomach but somehow he is as happy as hell.

—Tallepin

MEMO ON SUGAR

Dear Pot Shots:

Here's one for your research bureau:

A prominent farmer and stockman from over this way was telling me recently that saccharin was the "stuff" the sugar factories used to sweeten sugar, otherwise sugar wasn't sweet at all.

I argued with him about it but could not convince him. He claimed a bulletin had been put out stating that saccharin was being used to sweeten sugar. .

If I remember correctly the symbol for sugar is $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$ and sugar is derived from either sugar cane or sugar beets as well as other plants.

Saccharin is derived from coal tar and is a hydrocarbon 500 times sweeter than sugar.

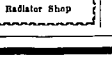

If saccharin is now being used to "sweeten" sugar the symbol must read somewhat different — or is my friend mistaken?

Thanks.

—A Burleyite

Pot's note: The research department, sugar branch, investigated the saccharin-sugar controversy and reports that A. Burleyite is correct in sticking to his guns that saccharin is not used to sweeten

68 Jerome Moose At State Meeting

JEROME, July 24 — Sixty-eight members of the Jerome Moose lodge attended the state convention in Twin Falls last week. The local degree team won the high honors and trophy for their degree drill and work.

Those participating included Duane Hessler, captain; John L. Dunn, past governor; Bart Ambrose, governor; Eynon Ward, junior governor; Chester Mumger, prelate; A. F Hessler, orator; Gene Brookins, sergeant-at-arms and Alfred Blessing, assistant sergeant-at-arms.

The Jerome degree team also initiated a large group of candidates at the state conclave

Philosophy Topic of Buhl Kiwanian Meet

BUHL, July 24 — The four great philosophies of life, the Rev. H. C. Bever told Buhl Kiwanians at the weekly meeting, are pessimism, optimism, humanism and moral optimism. He spoke on the topic, "Conservation of Mind — Or a Philosophy That Works."

Erwin Tomlinson sang three numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Tomlinson. Delbert Buckendorf was introduced as a new member. Guests included J. H. Shields, Norval Pfeiffer, both of Buhl; Chester Scott, Walla Walla, Wash., and Carl Curtis, visiting Kiwanian.

RECOVERING

HAILEY, July 24—Lloyd Walker, sr., is at the Hailey clinical hospital recovering from major surgery which he underwent last week.

20 Cigarettes Bring $13 on Berlin Street

By LYLE C. WILSON

BERLIN, July 24 (U.P.)—In violation of all law except supply and demand, I strolled into a Berlin street crowd and sold for $13 a package of cigarettes which cost me 15 cents at Schulte's store, 14th and F streets in Washington, D. C.

What I received for my cigarettes was not dollars. It was marks—120 of them. The mark is worth 10 cents because the four powers occupying Germany have agreed, to that rate of exchange.

But facts are that the mark actually isn't worth much of anything except for the purchase of rationed goods with fixed prices.

Barter Prevails

Barter, therefore, has become a big business in Berlin and generally throughout Germany. Tobacco is both a luxury and a medium of exchange.

The average German has become a pack rat hoarding all kinds of food and goods for which he will pay fantastic prices.

His hunger for tobacco is pathetic. His ration of 12 cigarettes monthly was abolished some time ago.

The German who pays the equivalent of $10 to $15 for a package of American cigarettes probably intends to smoke a couple and trade the rest. Two packs of cigarettes would get him a bottle of wine in Berlin's shabby but most luxurious night club, the Femina.

Basic Exchange

Cigarettes, soap and chocolate which can be had by our soldiers in substantial quantities at army post exchanges are basic items in Germany's "Alice in Wonderland" barter economy.

Until recently it was possible for a GI to buy almost unlimited quantities of such scarce articles from the post exchange for German marks.

He could sell them instantly for a hundred times their cost, receiving marks with which to make further purchases.

Col. Frank Howley of the four-power Berlin kommandatura cited last August as an example, American soldiers in this area sent home by money order approximately $3,000,000. Their total payroll was only $1,000,000.

FFA Boys Get Practical Experience on the Farm

Here are a few typical scenes of Twin Falls high school FFA youths in action at their parents' farms. In the upper right picture Jim Read, 15, is shown feeding his prize steer a forkful of hay and in the upper right Lavar Bloxham brushes the Hereford steer he has out since last fall. Lower left, Bob Holloway shows Ralph Edwards, vocational agriculture instructor, his bean crop. In the lower center picture, Eugene Pickett, a straight A student, and Edwards stand waist deep in wheat surveying Pickett's 3½ acres. Lower right, Fred Wanman is shown pouring grain into the trough for his band of 11 registered Suffolk sheep (Photos and layout by Bob Leeright-staff engravings)

High School FFA Youths Getting Good Start for Own Profitable Farm Ventures With Cash Projects Now

By BOB LEERIGHT

Eighty Twin Falls high school youths are getting a good start toward profitable farming ventures with their Future Farmer of America agricultural projects, according to Ralph Edwards, vocational agriculture instructor.

The farm projects, which extend beyond the nine months of formal schooling, help the farm youth get a start toward his own farming business and teach the boy the value of keeping adequate, accurate farm records.

Several of the high school youths are virtually operating their own farms this summer as FFA projects. Scott McMaster and his brother are farming 40 acres of beans and wheat; Gene Caldwell, FFA president, and his brother are farming 80 acres of beans and wheat; Jim Requa is farming 16 acres of beans, and several others are growing crops and raising livestock.

For a boy to take FFA in high school he must have either a crop or livestock project and carry the project through to its objective, Edwards said. One of the main requirements in the project is keeping of a detailed farm enterprise record.

"Farming is a big business," Edwards said. "The idea of the record book is to give the boy some idea how much he has to put in on a project to make money."

While most school teachers' jobs are nine-month affairs, it's a year-around job for Edwards, who spends the summer months touring the district checking up on his students' projects. He checks to see if records are up to date. If pens are cleaned, fields weeded and helps the boys when they need assistance.

Recently a Times-News reporter went with Edwards on one of his daily inspection trips of his students' work. Lavar Bloxhom, 15, a high school sophomore this coming year, was visited first. He has a beef project and has fed a Hereford steer since last fall, watching the animal grow from 605 pounds to nearly 1,200 pounds now. Bloxhom is undecided whether to show the animal at the Twin Falls county fair this fall or sell it in the livestock auction ring soon.

He was assured of another FFA beef project for the coming year when he won a calf in the calf scramble at the Twin Falls rodeo July 4.

Fred Wanman, another 15-year-old sophomore, started out with four registered Suffolk ewes last fall. Today he has 11 registered sheep and lambs. Wanman is planning on selling two of his ewe lambs at a Twin Falls livestock marketing association lamb pool soon.

Eugene Pickett, 16, a straight A student in agriculture, is renting three and one-half acres of land from his father, Alva E. Pickett, on a share-crop basis, and has a nice crop of wheat. Pickett also has a dairy Hereford cow.

Jim Read, 15, sophomore, obtained a Hereford steer last fall and fed him during the winter and spring putting lots of beef steaks on the animal. He plans to double his business this year and feed out two steers.

Starting out with one beef calf, Bob Holloway, 15, junior, has expanded his farming business and now he has two and one-half acres of beans, nine Toulouse geese, two heifers, one springer heifer and two milk cows.

Holloway points out the benefits of diversified farming with his Toulouse geese. Instead of a "goose egg" for an income, he turns it into a profit at 35 cents an egg. Holloway is planning on expanding his geese business and now has four eggs ready to be hatched.

Countless other Twin Falls county youths are learning the basic fundamentals of farming and getting the practical experience needed for successful agriculture, Edwards said.

County Sheep Breeders List Stock at Sale

Frank I. Stetman, R. B. Beattie, A. E. Boone, C. W. Colmer and Harry Bohnquist, all of Twin Falls, and all prominent and successful breeders of purebred sheep, will take some of their top rams to the state ram sale at Filer Aug. 7, according to Mel Chaz secretary of the Idaho Wool Growers association.

Other prominent breeders of Twin Falls county include Willard Mc-Master, Hansen; Ben Jansen, Kimberly; Robert S. Blaistock, A. E. and Lloyd Bohnquist, W. E. McCoy, and L. A. Winkle, Filer, and David Bellume, Buhl.

More than 700 of the state's best purebred rams will be assembled at Filer for showing and sale. Chairman in all, 45 of Idaho's foremost purebred sheep breeders will have offerings of their choicest Hampshire, Suffolk, and Suffolk-Hampshires at this event.

Being the silver anniversary, or the 25th annual sale, this year has been dedicated to the men who have contributed to the upbuilding of the industry. Dr. S. W. McCuer, past secretary of the national association, will give a tribute in commemoration of purebred breeders.

MORTICIAN ARRIVES

Occupation of Japan Making Pact Possible

By MILES W. VAUGHN

TOKYO, July 24 (U.P.)—Allied occupation of Japan has developed so successfully that a final peace treaty may be signed next spring and the original occupation estimate of from five to 15 years radically reduced, it was believed today in high allied quarters.

The chief remaining bar to signature of a final peace treaty in the opinion of high allied quarters was said to be the question of reparations.

Supreme allied headquarters here does not deal with reparations questions but it was believed that there might be differences of opinion with Russia on reparations which might block efforts to sign an early Japanese peace treaty.

In the view of the high command here, it was said, the reparations issue should be taken up at an early date. The reports of President Truman's emissary, Edwin W. Pauley, it was thought, would provide a basis for consideration of reparations estimates.

It was said here that if reparations can be fixed and if no other inter-allied differences arise there should be no reason why a final peace treaty could not be signed possibly as early as 20 months after the July 26 anniversary of the Potsdam declaration.

That would mean a peace treaty next spring.

Display Stresses Safety on Farm

To underline the importance of Idaho farm safety week July 21 to 27, Jack P. Smith, county agent, secured material for the new Idaho Power window display.

A red "X" is splashed across a man's forehead with the legend reading "X marks the spot where accidents begin" and a warning "Be careful today. Be here tomorrow" on the biggest poster of the lot.

All Granges in Idaho are devoting meetings to the farm safety theme this week, Smith said.

Supporting the national farm safety schedule, the Idaho program is headed by J. W. Barker, state county agent leader for the university extension, Moscow.

WEEKLY DANCES

Mrs. Irene St. Clair, warden; Mrs. Ralph Riley, sr., conductress, and Mrs. Ivan Pace, musician. The group will meet next Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Nevadan Gets Order To Leave on Train

Dory Bryant, 65, a Nevadan, was "floated" from the Twin Falls city jail Tuesday night, just before train time, to leave "at request of the court" for San Jacinto.

He was apprehended by Twin Falls city police Monday night on an intoxication charge, and Municipal Judge J. O. Pumphrey withheld passing of sentence with the provision that Bryant would leave on the first available train for Nevada.

Two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Davis, were given the obligation at the Tuesday night meeting of the Mountain Rock Grange. Master Frank Lorain was in charge of the meeting.

Deputy Sheriff D. C. Parrott, county traffic officer, spoke on safety. Other selections on the literary program were an accordion solo by Viridi Kleinkopf and a reading by Mrs. Frank Lorain. Mr. and Mrs. Clark Kleinkopf and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kleinkopf served refreshments.

A picnic is scheduled for next Sunday at the Ray Moon home. The next meeting will be Aug. 13.

House Creek School Needs Tutor, Pupils

A school teacher with one or two school-age children is badly needed at the House Creek school, Mrs. Doris Stradley, county superintendent of public instruction, announced Tuesday.

Six pupils are necessary to keep the school functioning under state law, but only five have enrolled. If such a teacher is not located, children in that territory will be forced to board away from home while attending the Rogerson school 28 miles away.

A primary teacher also is needed for the first and second grades at the Union school four and one-half miles west of Twin Falls, she added.

Owner Joins Driver In Paying Fine Here

Operating a truck without a valid chauffeur's license resulted Tuesday in fines of $5 and $3 costs for the driver, R. C. Coley, and the owner of the vehicle, Albert Kast, who appeared before Probate Judge C. A. Bailey.

Coley's license expired July 1. The citation was issued by Deputy Sheriff Ed Hall July 18 two miles west of here on U. S. highway 30.

Coley told the court he now has a valid license.

$26,200 Permits

BURLEY, July 24 — Building permits granted at city council meeting totaled $26,200. Those securing permits include John Chisholm, new house Homeland addition, $8,000; Wayne Long, contractor for two houses, $6,000 and $5,500; Robert P. Lambert, new house, Southgate addition, $6,000, and Leo Carlson, garage, $200.

Canning Hints

More Twin Falls housewives are canning foodstuffs this year than ever before and as the canning season gets into full swing Ruth L. Brown, assistant farm security administration supervisor (home management)) offers helpful hints to housewives confronted with a myriad of canning problems.

"The first commandment of canning is to preserve the food while it's fresh and in prime condition," Miss Brown said. "The farsighted homemaker will be prepared by having her canning equipment ready and in good condition."

She warned not to get more food available than can be handled efficiently and suggested canning a few jars at a time as the crop matures in the garden.

To avoid wasting food Miss Brown suggested that homemakers share with their neighbors in the garden harvest or make a deal for getting the neighbor to help with the canning in exchange for a share in the garden produce.

"Families who haven't a garden can do some canning to an advantage by watching the markets," she said. "By buying and canning when fruits and vegetables are seasonally abundant shoppers not only get advantages in price and quality but they also help save food from wasting."

She advised getting all canning equipment in good shape and to discard cracked and chipped jars, defective or bad lids, old rubber rings, and fruit or vegetables with the slightest touch of decay.

"In order to shrink the food for packing and to shorten the processing time it is a good practice to precook the food for a short time before packing it into the jars," Miss Brown declared.

The amount of heat and cooking time varies with different types of food and for this reason the canning of mixed vegetables was not recommended.

Miss Brown declared that improper canning causes waste and is dangerous as poorly canned food may harbor germs which cause food poisoning. To be on the safe side she recommended that the canner should follow up-to-date directions and timetables.

"Since canning time tables are made for low altitudes it is necessary to make some adjustments in processing at this altitude," the home demonstration expert said.

In using a water bath canner Twin Falls county housewives will have to process from one to two minutes longer for every thousand feet of altitude depending upon the food being cooked. With a pressure cooker, the pressure at sea level to 2,000 feet should be 10 pounds and a pound of pressure should be added for every 2,000 feet above sea level.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

"What are you doing to Bowser, Sonny?"

"Nothing. I'm just having fun with him."

"But I heard him cry out."

"He's all right."

"Sonny, what did you do to Bowser?"

"I only pinched him a little—just for fun — I didn't hurt him."

"You certainly did hurt him—don't do that again."

Bowser and Sonny were close companions. Sonny loved his little dog, and the dog loved him. Bowser slept on a mat under the foot of Sonny's bed. Sonny loved to call Bowser in the morning and let him jump up on the bed and lick his face all over and play hide-and-seek under the blankets.

The evening of the day upon which mother scolded Sonny for pinching Bowser, Sonny went to bed and called Bowser. Bowser looked up from his place by the fire, but laid his head down again and stayed where he was, much to Sonny's surprise. He called again, but Bowser gave no heed to his call.

"Bowser, Sonny is calling you," said mother.

Bowser rose, went to mother, licked her hand and wagged his tail. She picked him up and carried him upstairs to his mat under Sonny's bed and Bowser jumped up on bed, but as soon as she turned to and raced downstairs to his place by the fire, saying as distinctly as his little dog could say it, "I'm staying here."

"Bowser says he is staying by the fire tonight," said mother. "He doesn't like a boy who pinches him."

Sonny cried, but Bowser stayed by the fire. It took several days of repentant kindness to win Bowser back to his old place, but Sonny worked hard at it and in the end won him back. But he has respect for his dog's feeling, now.

There are not many dogs as firm in their decisions as Bowser, but there are many little boys who have a little fun pinching their dogs and pulling their tails. If Bowser takes a stand and maintains it, the youngster will learn quickly — but if not, and too often the dog accepts whatever treatment he receives and keeps right on loving his unkind master someone ought to take Bowser's place and teach the naughty youngster that ill treatment means the loss of his pet until there is some evidence of better behavior.

Annoying habits in children should not always be tolerated and left to be outgrown. Angelo Patri recommends parents search for the cause and work to remove it in his booklet, No. 3. The booklet is obtainable by sending 10 cents (coin preferred) and a three-cent stamp to his address (Times-News, P. O. Box 99, Station 6, New York 19, N. Y.).

Rainy Day Togs

NEA Service

A job seeker with two presentable outfits planned for the campaign ahead—one for rain, one for shine—has an advantage over the girl who must switch to some thing glummy because of a change in the weather.

Here's a timely tip to young hopefuls. It comes from Kathleen Bowen, a top New York employment counselor, who gives this grooming advice to feminine clients before their job campaigns start.

"Girls who stake all on a fair-weather outfit," says the job counselor," have often lost out because they appeared for interviews in dreary clothes which bad weather forced them to wear."

Her advice on clothes planned for a foul-weather switch? Using a trim raincoat as the backbone of the outfit—you'll need one for the job, she says—ensemble it with a dress or suit of matching or harmonizing color. Add accessories that look right for the weather, she says. "If the rainy-day outfit is thus properly arranged," says Miss Bowen, "it can make you look as nice and give you as much self-confidence as spotlighter duds that take you to interviews on sunny days."

One problem has been solved for the movie-going public. Some public-minded client has invented a silent paper-bag for the popcorn, peanuts, candy, etc., that so many movie-goers like to munch on during tense moments on the screen.

Now if someone can just get rid of a few more distractions the movies ought to become the perfect place to relax when one is running away from the kids for an evening.

For example:

The six-foot-plus giant who always moves in to take the seat directly in front of you, occupied by a shorty when you arrived.

The love-birds who put their two heads together and completely blot out the screen for those behind them, and who don't seem to know that a couple who plans to use movie seats for a parlor sofa should sit in the back row.

The giggling girls who go to the movies in threes or forms, and start to gossip whenever they find the picture boring.

A no host luncheon was served by the women of circle one. Mrs. Jack Webster and Mrs. H. Franson were co-chairmen in charge of the arrangements.

The fellow who has seen the movie before, and who, in an effort to impress his date with his clairvoyance, let everybody know within earshot in on what is going to happen next.

THE MANGRUM MANNER, No. 7: Club Switches Don't Change Principle

By Lloyd Mangrum

U. S. Open Champion
(As told to Ned Brown)

Mangrum's long iron shot.

Playing long iron shots numbers one to three, the ball must be hit descending blow. The bottom of the swing arc comes slightly after impact. The ball is placed almost directly out from the left heel. The stance should be square, head down in position so you can easily see the ball with the left eye.

Because the iron clubs' shafts are shorter than those of woods, stand closer to the ball. Determine the distance by laying the sole of the club in a natural position behind the ball. Take a comfortable position without extra reaching.

Hold the right shoulder slightly lower than the left. Do not take the club as far in the backswing as in playing wood clubs, but with these exceptions noted the swing is the same in all golf shots except putting. Only the degree of movement changes with different clubs, not the principle.

If the club be taken too far into the backswing it will tend to move the head out of position; the left arm will have to bend or your grip on the club may loosen.

Too short a backswing is better than too long.

NEXT: Medium iron play.

ARNOLD HALTS PILOTS ON TWO HITS

Cowboys Get 4 Runs in First Frame; Win, 6-0

By GEORGE F. REDMOND
Times-News Sports Editor

The first chapter in the advertised home-run battle between Twin Falls Buddy Heslet and Boise's manager-first sacker, Walt Lowe, failed to develop last night as the Pilots opened a four-contest series with the Cowboys at Jaycee park with a well go on tonight when the two teams square for the second contest of the set. That is, it will, if Lowe steers clear of the umpires and the Waddies big backstop shifts from a two-base hitting to a home run-smashing mood.

But so far as the 1,514 Magic Valley fans were concerned they had something better last night than a home run battle when a near no-hitter by Jimmy "No-Hit" Arnold which gave the Cowboys a 6-0 triumph and moved them up to within a game and a half of the leadership, now held by the Pilots. The Wranglers remained tied for fourth place, however, a half game ahead of the last place Salt Lake City Bees.

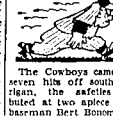

Arnold was so good that he allowed the Pilots, who have been crushing all opposition lately, only two hits and one of these, a smash at second baseman Jack Radtke that took a bad bound, left official scorekeeper Bob Leerlight sweating for six innings—until the eighth inning when Tamone, the Boise third-sacker, rode all question of a no - hit game with a clean safety over third baseman Ned Sheehan's head.

Arnold

The Cowboy hurler had everything as he fanned six batters and walked only one. His curve was snapping off over the corner of the plate, his fast ball was alive and his slow ball gave the Boise batters little chance to get set.

That neither Heslet or Lowe added to his home run total, now 20 each, was due to fate. The Pilot manager was too garrulous in his protest in the first inning when the Cowboys put over four of their runs and umpire Lack Burns sent him to the showers. As for Heslet he came up with three hard-hit balls, one going for a double, the other for a single and the third backing Boise's fleet center fielder, Silverthorn, up against the center-field wall—just a few feet from a home run.

The Cowboys came up with only seven hits off southpaw Jim Kerrigan, the safeties being distributed at two apiece to Heslet, first baseman Bert Bonomi and Sheehan and one to Hal Lowe. However, Heslet, Lowe and Sheehan fashioned doubles.

But the Wranglers made the most of their safeties, bunching four of them in the first frame for four runs. Center-fielder George Leyrer banged out an hit went, stole second. Bonomi then singled Leyrer to third and Radtke, sacrificing, Thompson first on a fielder's choice that didn't jell for the Pilots. Leyrer crossed the plate on the hunt. Heslet smashed the ball to left for a double, Bonomi crossing the plate. Shortstop Hal Loewe put the finishing touches on the glorious inning with another double to send Radtke and Heslet home.

From then until the eighth inning, Kerrigan allowed only one safety but in that frame Heslet singled hard to left, Loewe sacrificed and Patterson walked. Sheehan lined a double to right center to send both Heslet and Patterson home.

Manager Earl Bolyard said that he would send righthander Frank Prowse to the hillock. Prowse, youngster of whom the Yankee farm organization thinks highly, gave Pocatello only three hits and gained a shutout against Pocatello in his last appearance on the mound.

Twin Falls Lads Confident of Winning Pocatello Engine Tilt

Confident that they have a better chance even of winning the state championship in the American Legion's national junior baseball competition, the members of the Twin Falls post team, coached by Ed Purves, departed today for Pocatello where they will oppose the sixth district champions tonight in the first contest of their semi-final series for the southern Idaho crown. The Pocatello team will come here Saturday night for a double-header to wind up the series.

The winner of the series will oppose the victor in the Jerome-Boise competition for the southern Idaho championship and the right to battle either Lewiston or Coeur d'Alene in the northern Idaho series.

Coach Purves said "if we can get a couple of runs" he was confident that Twin Falls would come through to victory in the opener at Pocatello. The Legion mentor based this prediction on his belief that in southpaw Bobby Long he has the classiest hurler in state Legion baseball. This will be Bobby's third year of Legion competition and he has another season to go. When only 14 years old, Long led Pocatello down with four hits.

The players who will make the trip include:

Pitchers — Bobby Long, Kenny Anderson and Jerry Parkinson.

Catchers — Paul Burkhart, Wayne Buckendorf and Ray Danner.

First base — Robert Hendrix.

Second base — Merlin Howard.

Shortstop — Chuck Halstead or Bobby Martyn.

Third base — Tommy Houston.

Outfielders — Randall Russell, Dave Gray and Tommy Day.

Rowe, Member of Vandal Title Five, to Play at Albion Normal

By HOWARD "SCRAPPY" TAYLOR

ALBION, July 24 — Basketball and football prospects are looking better every day for Coach Gene Cooper, the former Glenns Ferry state championship coach who has returned from Oregon, to take up the coaching reins at Albion Normal in these two sports. And don't be surprised if the Albion name is emblazoned on the sport pages of the newspapers in this part of the state frequently during the fall and winter months.

Latest to enter the school is Jack Rowe, an Albion youth who played with the University of Idaho's Northern Pacific Coast conference's cage champions, last winter. Standing well over six feet, Rowe will probably be used at center by Cooper and a good team moulded around him. He is fast and a dead shot with either hand.

Another prospective star to enroll is Ray Stoddard, a stocky youngster from Lava Hot Springs who in practice sessions already looks like excellent football material.

Interest in sports is running high here.

Ernie Craner, who gained popularity in the Magic Valley as Burley junior high coach, and Ronald Reed are acting as instructors of the sports program and plenty of activities are provided.

A softball league has completed its schedule with Don Regnas' hard-hitting team taking the championship with five victories and no defeats. Lavere Gooch's and Elmer Chutea teams took second place with two victories and three defeats. Harold Seed's Willow Welders landed firmly in last place with one victory and four losers.

Volleyball teams have opened play with the following captains: Ray Stoddard, Verlin Williamson, Illman Hunt, Howard Mathews, Harry Kurtz and Reed.

Coaching school goes on every day with Reed acting as instructor assisted by Coach Cooper. Plays are set up and worked for the benefit of the future Magic Valley high school coaches.

Clover Leading New Ball League

Texas-born "Babe" toured Tam o'Shanter's picturesque tournament course two strokes under the record se' by Patty Berg, Minneapolis, in 1943.

Bees Win on Four Safeties

SALT LAKE CITY, July 24 (AP)—The cellar-dwelling Salt Lake City Bees got four hits while the Ogden Reds got eight but the hive won the contest, 5-1.

The four blows off Ludwig Lee combined with two wild pitches by that hurler and another erratic toss by Dale Long gave the Bees the win.

Enos, Pioneer Bat Champion, To Rejoin Bees

SALT LAKE CITY, July 24 (AP)—Willie Enos, once a "great" in the Pioneer league, will return to Salt Lake City today to aid the Bees in the second-half race.

Enos, a rugged outfielder, topped Pioneer league hitters in 1942 and was a mainstay on the Salt Lake City club. Enos then moved to the San Francisco club of the Pacific coast league and led the seal hitters in 1945. He slumped this year and was released recently.

In addition to signing Enos, the Hive has taken on Joe Brovia, another outer gardener, and Larry Powell, a lefthanded hurler. Brovia and Powell are on option from the San Francisco Seals.

ON THE SPORT FRONT

Ye Olde Sport Scrivener has some news for Earl Bolyard—news that will cause great rejoicing all the way back to Fort Wayne, Ind. And it is this:

The Magic Valley fans believe—unanimously—that he not only is a championship manager but an all-star manager, as well.

In the hundred or so all-star ballots through which an all-star team will be selected from the players on the Twin Falls, Boise and Idaho Falls teams to meet a similar aggregation from the other Pioneer clubs for the all-star game Aug. 1 in Pocatello and Aug. 2 in Salt Lake City, the Wranglers' pilot was named—without exception.

Add to all this YOSS' approval. Bolyard has been a fine manager, especially when it came to handling his players. He kept a bunch of high-strung boys at a winning pitch throughout the season, kept down all dissension, which is a real problem in baseball, and molded them into an all-for-one and one-for-all diamond aggregation.

You and you and you, too, who have the privilege of second-guessing, which Bolyard hasn't, might have found Earl's baseball tactics not to your liking at times, but these times have been few and far between.

The Cowboy pilot did a perfect job of bringing his boys up to the playoff game for the first half championship with the Salt Lake City Bees, and that was the big test. Put that reason, the Magic Valley has a big championship series to look forward to, if not a title in the second half.

The loyalty of the Magic Valley fans reflects all through the ballots. They're for the Cowboys to the finish.

And here's some good news for Pete Donet, the umpire who has been having troubles, some of them in the form of pop bottles and others in the form of irate fans who make it necessary for him to leave the park under police escort: More fans than not elected him to umpire the all-star games.

You know the pudgy one ever so often gets a kick out of putting a silver lining to those dark clouds. And he hopes the news gets to the harrassed arbiter.

AND THAT'S THAT FOR NOW, except: All-star ballots received up to 6 p. m. today will be sent to President Jack Halliwell. He must have them by noon tomorrow.

Oiling of 4 Filer Streets Underway

FILER, July 24—Work is rapidly getting underway in the oiling of four Filer city streets and gravelling of the west end of Fifth and Sixth streets is completed, according to Cecil Macaw, city council member. Work is now underway on gravelling the east end of the two streets.

An assessment of 25 cents per frontage foot will be made to residents of the streets which are improved, Macaw stated. This assessment is being made, the council member stated, to eliminate necessity for a bond issue.

They Will Give Concert at Clover

"The Semphonics," quartet of male singers from the Concordia Lutheran seminary, St. Louis, Mo., will present a sacred concert at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Clover Lutheran church. The quartet is on a 17-state tour.

* * * *

CLOVER, July 24—A vocal quartet from Concordia seminary, St. Louis, Mo., will present a concert of sacred music Sunday, July 28, at the Trinity Lutheran church in Clover, the Rev. W. F. Dannenfeldt, pastor, announced.

The program, which begins at 8 p. m., will include chorales, anthems and hymns from various sections of the Christian church. The quartet, named "The Semphonics," is touring 17 states and presenting 40 concerts in the interests of the century-old Lutheran seminary.

A free will offering will be taken and the public is invited to attend. The quartet is under the direction of John Katt, Shaker Heights, O. Singers include Elmer Witt, Chicago, first tenor; Paul Dannenfeldt (nephew of the Clover pastor), Fort Wayne, Ind., second tenor; Edward Vajda, East Chicago, first bass; and Albert Dede, Milwaukee, second bass.

A member of the quartet will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning.

Nab or Kill Yamashita—That Was Order Given This Scout

An assignment to capture or kill General Yamashita, the Tiger of Malaya, was one of the first Philippine missions entrusted to Lieut. George Claxton in August, 1944, when he landed in the islands with other volunteers from the sixth alamo scouts.

Claxton served with the navy, Philippine guerrillas and the merchant marine, while still in the army.

Claxton, now in charge of the local recruiting office, was then a sergeant and had already seen action as wireless operator aboard a submarine-decoy merchant vessel. En route to the Philippines in a submarine, Claxton and the crew of the submarine to which he was assigned were among the few Americans to land in Japan before the end of the war.

Landed on Japan

With weeks to kill before a rendezvous with guerrillas on Luzon, the skipper of the sub decided to take a close look at Japan. They did, going ashore three nights in a row on the coast south of Kobi, Japan.

Claxton said there were apparently no shore defenses or sentries.

Put Ashore Secretly

Leaving Japan the submarine cruised south to Luzon, sinking enemy shipping on the way. On Aug. 1, 1944, after recognition signals had been received, Claxton and three other jungle trained non-commissioned officers were put ashore along with quantities of arms, ammunition and explosives.

They had expected a quiet reception as the Japanese 19th division under Yamashita had control of the island, but as soon as the four scouts were recognized, hundreds of guerrillas ran out to the beach shouting and lighting torches.

Bad Moment

"That was one of the worst moments I had in the war," Claxton said, "until I learned that the guerrillas held a perimeter approximately 20 miles deep."

Officer in charge of the scouts and guerrillas on Luzon was army Col. Russell K. Volkman, one of the few officers who after capture escaped from Santo Tomas prison camp. Claxton was under the command of the executive officer, another American, Lieut.-Col. Thomas J. Murphy.

Soon after arrival, Claxton and three enlisted men were assigned to follow the Japanese 19th division which was constantly changing position and holding maneuvers. They were ordered to capture or kill Yamashita, an order that they found impossible to fulfill.

Five Month Chase

For five months the four soldiers dodged Jap patrols and kept up with the main elements of the Jap division. Malaria forced the return to base headquarters of the four.

When detailed plans were received by the guerrillas of the time and place of the American invasion, the Jap 19th division was scattered between the headquarters and white beach near San Fabian where the Americans first went ashore.

Buried Themselves

Three days before D-day on Luzon, Claxton and two Philippine scouts made their way to San Fabian where they buried themselves under the foundation of a bridge, with a pipe for air. On D-day Claxton went through the unique and unpleasant experience of being shelled by the U. S. navy and bombed and strafed by allied planes.

After the first units had swept ashore, Claxton and the two scouts approached an American unit and were immediately taken prisoner. In vain he tried to explain who he was and the purpose of his mission.

The low ranking officers who detained him refused to take him to the commanding officer believing him to be a renegade American and his scouts, collaborators. After more than an hour of abuse and questioning, Claxton got through to the commanding officer, identified himself and revealed the disposition of the Jap forces on the island.

County Takes In $116,374 License Fees

A total of 14,592 vehicle registrations poured $116,374 into the coffers of Twin Falls, Buhl, Filer and Murtaugh highway districts between Jan 1 and June 30, 1946, according to George A. Childs, county assessor.

In those six months, a breakdown of figures shows, total licenses issued for Twin Falls county's four highway districts were: 9,355 passenger car licenses costing five dollars each; 2,370 private trailer licenses at one to 10 dollars each; 1,696 farm truck licenses at five dollars each, 987 private truck licenses at $10 to $100 apiece.

Three hundred fifty-six commercial truck licenses costing between $20 and $235 each; 55 farm trailer licenses costing from three to 10 dollars apiece; 49 motorcycle licenses priced at three dollars apiece; 43 dealer's licenses at $60 apiece; 28 commercial trailer licenses costing from $20 to $235 each; eight ambulance and hearse licenses at a cost of $12 apiece, and five wrecker licenses priced from $5 up.

Of the $116,374 highway revenue, Twin Falls district took in $76,103, Buhl district accounted for $26,364, Filer district garnered $11,258 and Murtaugh district gleaned $2,649.

61 New Phones at Wendell in Year

WENDELL, July 24—An increase of 61 telephones during the past year in Wendell illustrates the rapid development of the area, according to H. A. Streed. This brings the total number of telephones to 216 and marks an increase of more telephones in a year than in the previous four years. War shortages retarded the increase of telephones before this year.

Five hundred more calls a day are being placed in Wendell than a year ago, when 1,000 daily calls were being made. Likewise long distance calls handled through the Jerome office average 31 per cent more a day than a year ago.

"Wendell is another of several hundred exchanges in the mountain states which is badly in need of additional facilities and for which equipment has been ordered," Streed stated.

$23 IN FINES

Earwig Spraying Of Entire Block Termed Success

Experimental spraying of earwigs with DDT in residential sections of Twin Falls has proved "more effective than hoped for," Mayor Bert A. Sweet said yesterday.

The pests have been destroying gardens and shrubbery in the city and attacking clothing and food in private homes.

An entire city block was sprayed with the insecticide several weeks ago, resulting in "95 to 100 per cent kills," Sweet announced.

Officials of the "Fearless Farris" pest control company declared that power sprayers can wipe out the earwigs at a cost of five or six dollars per residence. They recommended that all property owners in a given block subscribe for spraying to enhance the effectiveness of the insect fight.

County Group Tours Experiment Station

About 12 Twin Falls county farmers, County Agent Jack P. Smith and W. G. (Bill) Priest, county club agent, toured the Aberdeen experiment station Tuesday afternoon.

The party was shown potato disease plots, potato tuber disease, new varieties of oats and wheat, the resistance of alfalfa to alfalfa wilt, new methods of reseeding reclaimed range land, and insect control demonstrations. Highlight of the trip was the viewing of many of the 4,000 different varieties of barley from all over the world which are being examined at the experiment station.

Promoted in Japan

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN SENDAI, Japan — T/4 Harold W. Mulder, Kimberly, Ida., has been promoted to the rank of staff sergeant. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mulder, Kimberly, the soldier is serving as mess sergeant in Sendai, Japan.

He entered the service in December, 1944, and went overseas in June, 1945. Before entering the army, he attended Kimberly schools.

ARRIVES HOME

CAREY, July 24 — S 1/c Kermit Pyrah, son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Pyrah, who was stationed at Treasure island, has arrived home following his discharge. He served in the navy 18 months.

RUPERT MAN ILL

RUPERT, July 24—Willis Hutton, former Rupert resident, is reported seriously ill in California. His daughter, Mrs. Raymond McNeeley, has gone to be with her father and will remain there for some time.

Alabaster is used in the manufacture of modern dishes, lampshades and powder boxes.

A-Bomb Blast May Toss Big Ships in Air

Everyone felt this was a lucky day. And it was phenomenal luck to get good weather right on schedule during one of the worst weather periods in this part of the Pacific.

Taxpayers can be happy too for it meant the second phase of operations Crossroads was off on schedule without a delay which would have cost tens of thousands of dollars for every day of waiting.

This ship is named "The Voice" because it was equipped with transmission facilities to deliver eye witness accounts by voice and radio teleprinter to the United States.

This is a giant flying newsroom—an amazing workshop in the sky from which we can transmit stories via the ship Appalachian to San Francisco and then by wire to every newspaper office in the country.

Two correspondents were chosen to represent the American press as aerial observers. Wayne Thomis of the Chicago Tribune, who is writing a pool story for specials and myself as wire service representative.

When I write a page of copy all I have to do is tear it from the typewriter and hand it to an operator, who transmits it to the Appalachian, which in turn sends it on to San Francisco. It's as simple as that in this marvelous age of marvels.

Veteran Serves Eviction Notice On His Parents

LOS ANGELES, July 24 (U.P.)—Mrs. Edna Price, 52, wept as she and her husband left a small five-room bungalow with a service flag in the window.

The husband, William L. Price, 55, led her out of the house yesterday, and their furnishings were removed, on an eviction notice obtained in court by their son, James W. Price, 25, navy veteran, and his wife, Lucille, 22.

The son, who saw two years of naval air service and is now a city employe, was not present when Deputy City Marshal Manuel Duarte served the eviction notice. The son's wife was sitting in an automobile nearby. "We've had to move in with my father," she told reporters, "and he wants to get married but can't as long as we're in his house. He has a right to happiness and so do we."

The young Mrs. Price said she and her husband had been trying to get possession of the property since last December without resort to the courts.

The elder Price, a warehouse foreman, said he had made temporary arrangements for his wife and himself to live in a double garage. The father said he moved into the house when his son went into the navy and had made improvements on the property since that time.

Oklahoma Voters Oust Incumbents

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 24 (AP)—A wave of "anti-incumbent" sentiment swept three veteran Democratic congressmen and three long-time state officials from office in yesterday's Oklahoma runoff primary election.

Personalities were the only issues in the races.

In addition to voting the veteran officeholders out, the state's Democrats picked Roy J. Turner, wealthy Oklahoma City oil and cattleman, as their nominee for governor in the Nov 5 general election.

Turner will face Olney F. Flynn, former Tulsa mayor, who won the Republican nomination in the first primary July 2.

Defeated were Congressman Jed Johnson, in the house 20 years; Lyle Boren, in congress 10 years, and Victor Wickersham, a house member five years.

Leg Broken, but Man Aids Rescue

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 24 (AP)—James Hines, 35, of Hudson, standing on a broken leg injured while he was escaping from a burning house, today caught six children thrown to him from a third story building by two women.

Caught in the third floor apartment by the fire, Hines leaped to a nearby garage, breaking his leg in the jump. Undaunted by his injury, Hines then jumped to the ground.

The children, ranging in age from one to 10, were dropped to him from the third floor by Mrs. Muriel Sanders and Helen Briggs who then fled to the second story roof from which firemen rescued them.

Choice Cattle Set New Price Record

CHICAGO, July 24 (AP) — Choice cattle broke the all time price record when one load sold at Union stockyards for $26.50. Ten other loads sold for $26.35. The record set just a week ago was $26.35.

Best hogs at $22.00 equalled the modern price record set last Wednesday, the highest in 27 years.

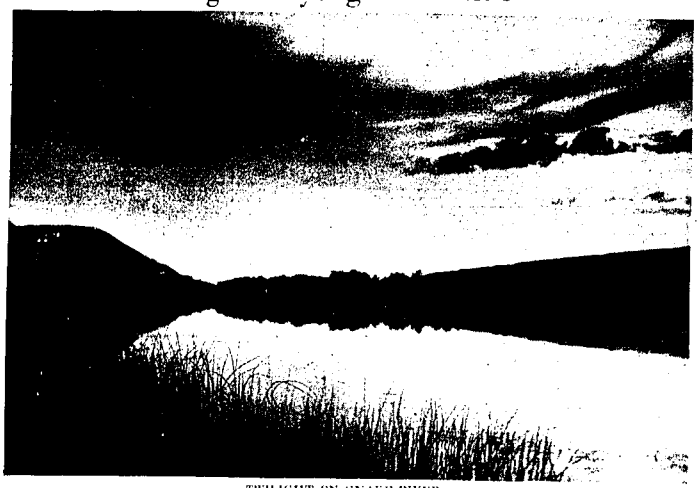

The price rises generally were 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight higher than yesterday's levels.

Grand Champion

SHOSHONE, July 24 — Helen Thomas, Dietrich, was grand champion at the 4-H short course judging contest at the University of Idaho. She received 725 points out of a possible 800. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas.

87 Ships Lined up at Bikini For Underwater A-Bomb Test

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW

ABOARD U. S. S. APPALACHIAN OFF BIKINI, July 24 (AP) — Grey ships filed out onto a grey ocean off Bikini atoll, and grimly watched for sting of death from beneath the water.

Within the lagoon, the target vessels silently awaited today whatever fate history's first submarine atomic explosion holds for them.

They ride quietly at anchor, chained to the coral bottom upon which some of them may rest forever.

We can see dainty Bikini island from the deck of this command ship, and across to reefs the target array is clearly visible.

We have steamed all day in a great circle at five knots. Others of the 100-odd ships of the support armada also are steaming slowly around a fixed orbit prescribed minutely in an operations plan worked out in far-away Washington.

What will happen?

"We do not know," says the man who bears the final responsibility—Vice-Adm. W. H. P. Blandy. "That is the reason this test is being held."

Some of the best guesses have been made by some expert forecasters and here is what they expect:

Will there be a flash? No, says Dr. Ralph A. Sawyer, technical director of operation crossroads. There might be a small one discernible from high above, but it will not be visible from the surface in daylight.

Will the water be blasted in all directions? No, says Dean Merle P. O'Brien of the University of California school of engineering. The water will go up in one great solid column at 2,000 feet per second which is faster than the speed of sound. The column will be 2,500 feet across at its base and will rise to 15,000 feet—one million tons of it. It will not be steam.

Will the lagoon be blown dry? Yes, says Commander Roger Revelle of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography of LaJolla, Calif. The bottom will be blown dry for a circle of perhaps 500 feet in diameter, and furthermore the bottom will be blown downward and depressed 25 feet lower than it now is.

What will happen to the target ships? They will be subjected, says Dr. Sawyer, to a violent shockwave 10,000 times greater than our largest possible previous experiments.

Will any ships be sunk?

"We are making up a pool among ourselves but are making no public guesses, says Dr. Sawyer.

Same Thing, but Trifle Different

BOISE, July 24 (UP) It's like the governor of Maine sending the governor of Idaho a potato but that simile is not an official opinion.

Gov. Arnold Williams today received a box of Bing cherries from Gov. Sam Ford of Montana, who said he hoped the "succulent and tangy" fruit would act as an invitation for Williams to visit Montana state.

The sentiment was the thing, apparently, as Idaho claims one of the most famous Bing cherry orchards in the country—in the Emmett valley.

Conductors Slate Strike August 7

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP) Conductors of the Pullman system plan to strike Aug. 7 over a wage issue unless President Truman names a fact finding board. That action automatically would halt any walkout for 60 days.

H. W. Fraser, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, said in t night the dispute involves interpretation of a wage increase agreement for 2,700 members of the union.

In the settlement of the recent railway strike he explained, the Pullman conductors were granted a pay increase of $1.48 a day.

The union contends the men should receive a monthly increase of 30 times $1.48, but the Pullman company, Fraser said, wants to break the increase down into an hourly figure and pay it on the basis of hours worked per month.

FBI Attacked For Handling Of Spy Trial

LONDON, July 24 (UP)—Moscow accused the "American secret police"—the FBI—today of trying to destroy friendly relations between the United States and Russia through the arrest of a Soviet naval lieutenant in Portland as a spy.

The Moscow radio broadcast a bitter attack on the handling of the case of Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin, who was arrested March 26 and was acquitted a week ago after a Seattle trial on espionage charges. The attack was made by David Zaslavsky, vitriolic Soviet writer, and was published in the communist party organ Pravda.

Allegen Plot

Referring to the developments in the Redin case, Zaslavsky wrote:

"This plot of bandits had the aim of breaking up the friendly relations which had been established between the American and Soviet people during the war against the common enemy, and which still exist in spite of all the efforts of American pro-fascist reaction."

No accident or design the Russian attack came not only a week after the exoneration of Redin but amidst an espionage tangle between the Soviets and Americans in Germany.

Red Spies Freed

Last week the Americans returned to the Russians two red army officers and their chauffeurs who had been arrested as spies in the U. S occupation zone of Germany. Army officials said at one time that the Russians were to be traded for two U. S. officers who disappeared into the Soviet zone of Berlin July 4 and still are missing. Two other Americans who disappeared in Berlin July 1 were returned by the Russians 15 days later.

Zaslavsky compared the FBI to the czarist secret police and charged:

"The dirty work of the American secret police is directing its activities shamelessly and unpunished against the international cooperation of the powers which joined to fight against fascism as the worst enemy of mankind."

Lions See Coin Exhibit at Meet

W. A. Peters, Jerome, guest speaker at the Wednesday luncheon session of the local Lions club, demonstrated his life-long hobby, coin collecting. He exhibited part of his large collection.

The first coin made in the United States was one struck in 1794 at the Philadelphia, Pa., mint, he said. His collection includes gold and silver coins from that date to the present in denominations from pennies to $20 gold pieces.

First Vice-President Ernest Jellison presided at the meeting in the absence of Graydon W. Smith, president, who is at the Lions International convention being held at Philadelphia. Smith is expected back next week, Horace Holmes, publicity chairman, said.

SAILOR HOME

HAILEY, July 24—Joseph Bergin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bergin, has arrived home after receiving his discharge at Bremerton, Wash. He served a year in Australia and Korea prior to V-J day and was in China when peace was declared.

WENDELL MAN DISCHARGED

WENDELL, July 24 — RDM 3/c Jerry Renfrow, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Renfrow, Wendell, was discharged at Shoemaker, Calif. He entered the navy in March, 1945, and served in the Pacific theater.

Northside Grange Installs New Head

JEROME, July 24—Frank Beer was installed master of the North Side Pomona Grange at a recent meeting at the Sugar Loaf schoolhouse. Installing officer was John Woolley. Matt Kulm was installed overseer.

Mrs. A. Wahl of the Canyonside Grange was in charge of the program which included readings, skits and musical numbers. Ten guests from the Butte Pomona Grange attended.

Refreshments were served by Sugar Loaf Grange members. The next meeting will be Aug. 15, at the Pleasant Plains Grange.

VFW Members

Six new members were accepted Tuesday night at a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post here. They include Otis L. King, Porter O. Worrell, Dale K. Atkinson, Roy O. Hass, John R. McHill and Max B. Petersen.
